POLICE QUELL STRIKE RIOT WITH CLUBS

LOWELL, Feb. 3.—The employes of the Lowell Rendering Company at Billerica went on strike this morning without giving any warning to the company. Over 100 Turks and Greeks who were employed there marched down to the shop this morning and placed pickets around the outside to keep the other workmen from entering.

Chief of Police Martin Conway was notified and he, in company with three patrolmen, went to the scene of the trouble and called for more police from Lowell. When the reserves arrived they found that the men were creating a riot and they were forced to subdue them with their clubs. Several cracked heads resulted.

The men want an increase of $2 weekly. They are now being paid $9, and they ask for $11. The company, however, claims that their work does not warrant the increase demanded and refused to listen to their argument.

Stones and other missiles were thrown, and several people barely escaped injury. The police charged the mob and made five arrests. The prisoners were bailed out and will be arraigned Monday. The men who were arrested and charged with assault were Ali Hassan, Bosbid Tjafer, Hafiz Bedjeb, Moustasa Abedlo, Ali Vehir.

NEW M'NAMARA BILLS EXPECTED

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—At least four union leaders of Chicago expect to be indicted by the Federal Grand Jury in Indianapolis next week. Half a dozen others fear that true bills will be found against them in connection with the McNamara dynamiting cases.

It was reported today that one labor leader had made a confession to the United States government agents implicating Chicago union leaders had in the McNamara affair. On this confession the impending indictments of his brother union men by the Grand Jury are said to be founded.

The man who confessed also accused high officials of organized labor here of being responsible for the fire in the Open Board of Trade building on December 19, which destroyed the offices of the unions. At least two labor leaders here have prepared to furnish bail if arrested.

BATHTUB MEN GIVE UP FIGHT

DETROIT, Feb. 3.—A. F. Ward, vice-president of the Day-Ward company of Warren, O., one of the defendants in the Bathtub Trust prosecution, appeared before Judge Angell in the United States Court today and, on behalf of himself and his concern, changed the pleas of not guilty previously made, and substituted pleas of nolo contendere. There are two indictments against each defendant in the bathtub cases, one charging combination in restraint of trade and the other conspiracy.

After accepting the pleas Judge Angell announced he would defer sentence. Other cases are set for February 6, but it is probable that either then or sooner several other defendants will enter similar pleas.

SEVEN CAUSES FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Extravagance and the protective tariff are among seven reasons for the high cost of living discovered by Professor L. C. Marshall of the Political Economy Department of the University of Chicago. The international committee to investigate expenses suggested by President Taft would find seven causes, said Professor Marshall. These causes are: Increased production of gold, failure to develop natural resources, increased grist to the trusts, the high tariff, extravagance, influence of "mob psychology," strikes and high prices, increase of wages due to unionism.

TOURED THE WORLD ON A MOTORCYCLE

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 3.—Living on sixty-two cents a day was one of many experiences Charles Crosby Hall, Brown graduate, had around the world recently. Mr. Crosby, a son of Whitman street, started last year on a bet and boarded a steamer to ride the entire last Summer in Italy and Spain were being embarked by [illegible] and saw the cholera epidemic in Italy. From Brindisi he went to Paris, and upon his arrival on his machine to make European ride.

Read Jack London's Great Klondike Story The Passing of Marcus O'Brien

"IT is the judgment of this court that you ramose the camp—in the customary way, sir, in the customary way."

Judge Marcus O'Brien was absentminded, and Mucine Charley nudged him in the ribs. Marcus O'Brien cleared his throat and went on:

"Welching the gravity of the offence, sir, and the extenuating circumstances, it is the opinion of this court, and its verdict, that you be outfitted with three days' grub. That will do I think."

Arizona Jack cast a bleak glance out over the Yukon. It was a swollen, chocolate flood, running a mile wide and nobody knew how deep. The earth bank on which he stood was ordinarily a dozen feet above the water, but the river was now growling at the top of the bank, devouring, instant by instant, tiny portions of the outstanding soil. These portions went into the gaping mouths of the endless army of brown swirls and vanished away. Several inches more and Red Cow would be flooded.

"It won't do," Arizona Jack said bitterly. "Three days' grub ain't enough."

"There was Manchester," Marcus O'Brien replied gravely. "He didn't get any grub."

"And they found his remains grounded on the Lower River an' half eaten by muskies," was Arizona Jack's retort. "And his killin' was without provocation. Joe Deeres never did nothin' never warbled once, an' jes' because his stomach was out of order Manchester ups an' plugs him. You ain't givin' me a square deal, O'Brien. I tell you that straight. Give me a week's grub and I play even to win out. Three days' grub an' I cash in."

"What for did you kill Ferguson?" O'Brien demanded. "I haven't any patience for these unprovoked killings. And they've got to stop. Red Cow's not a populous. It's a good camp, and there never used to be any killings. Now they're epidemic. I'm sorry for you, Jack, but you've got to be made an example of. Ferguson didn't provoke enough for a killing."

"Provoke!" Arizona Jack snorted. "I tell you, O'Brien, you don't savve. You ain't got no artistic sensibilities. What for did I kill Ferguson? What for did Ferguson sing 'Thee I wisht I was a little bird, little bird?' That's what I want to know. Answer me that. What for did he sing 'little bird, little bird?' One little bird was enough. I could a-stood one little bird. But no, he must sing two little birds. I gave him a chanst. I went to him almighty polite and requested him kindly to discard one little bird. I pleaded with him. There were witnesses that testified to that."

"An' Ferguson was no jay-throated songster," spoke up some one.

O'Brien betrayed indecision.

"Ain't a man got a right to his artistic feelin's?" Arizona Jack demanded. "I gave Ferguson warnin'. It was violatin' my own nature to go on listenin' to his little birds. Why, there's music sharps that time-strung an' keyed-up they'd kill for bein' less. I did. I'm willin' to pay for havin' artistic feelin's. I can take my medicine an' lick the spoon, but three days' grub is enough. It's a shade too thin, that's all. I hereby register my kick. Go on with the funeral."

O'Brien was still wavering. He glanced inquiringly at Mucine Charley.

"I should say, judge, that three days' grub was a mite severe," the latter suggested, "but you're runnin' the show. When we elected you judge of this here trial court we agree to abide by your decisions, an' we've done it, too, b'gosh, an' we're goin' to keep on doin' it."

"Mebbe I've been a trifle harsh, Jack," O'Brien said apologetically—"I'm that worked up over these killings; an' I'm willing to make it a week's grub." He cleared his throat magisterially and looked about him. "And now we might as well get along and finish up the business. The boat's ready. You go and get the grub, Leclaire. We'll settle for it afterward."

Arizona Jack looked grateful, and, muttering something about "mighty little blokes," stepped aboard the open boat that rocked restlessly against the bank. It was a large skiff, built of rough pine planks that had been sawed by hand from the standing timber of Lake Lindeman, a few hundred miles above, at the foot of Chilcoot. In the boat were a pair of oars and Arizona Jack's blankets. Leclaire brought the grub, tied up in a flour sack, and put it on board. As he did so, he whispered:

"I gave you good measure, Jack. You done it with generosity."

"Cast her off!" Arizona Jack cried.

PROTEST MADE TO GOVERNOR BY MILL STRIKERS

A delegation of Lawrence strikers, six in number, called on Governor Foss at the State House today to protest against the manner in which the State authorities are handling the Lawrence strike, and particularly against the detention of Joseph J. Ettor, the strike leader.

The delegation, consisting of Gilbert G. Smith, Samuel Lipshitz, Archibald H. Adamson, Louis Boches and Miss Harriet Hanson, with Leone Mucrie as counsel, did not get an audience with the Governor until after 11 o'clock, the Governor being late in arriving at his office. When they were finally admitted to the executive chamber, Smith, acting as spokesman for the delegation, laid their grievances before the Governor. They are as follows:

"Previous to the strike in Lawrence, at a regular meeting of Local 20, I. W. W., held on the first Wednesday in January, a committee of two was elected to interview the mill agents about what we were to expect under the fifty-four-hour law.

"The committee reported that at the Ayer mills they were told to get out or they would be thrown down the steps; at the Wood mill the officials refused to receive them; at the Washington mills they were referred to the Lawrence office of the American Woolen Company. Later they drew up a letter and had it typewritten and sent it by special delivery to William Wood in Boston, asking for a reply either through the newspapers or by letter. We got an answer. Some two or three days before the 13th of January, which was pay day, we again wrote asking what pay we were to receive, and that letter was also ignored.

Ettor to Urge Peace.

"During that time the different nationalities were holding meetings throughout the town; on January 10, the second Wednesday in the month, when we were holding our regular meeting, the telephone rang and we were asked what action we were going to take, as the different nationalities were going to strike. Our answer was that until they had formed an organization and until we knew where all the men stood, we intended to take no action whatever.

"Here, also, Smith said letters and telegrams had been sent to Ettor urging him to come to Lawrence, but that Ettor refused until he had received official request from the organization.

Continuing, Smith said:

"The object of calling Ettor was to organize the people and keep them peaceful, for he knew that it would be hard on account of the dynamite stories.

Say Dynamite Was "Planted."

"We were not surprised on the following Saturday, January 20, when they found the dynamite planted by the mill owners and their lackeys. And we reported to Ettor that men were coming from New York and other places to blow up the mills. Neither were we surprised when we found him in our fellowmen. Ettor, was arrested, for we had learned to read and think for ourselves.

"On the day of his arrest Mayor Scanlon was quoted in the Lawrence Telegram as saying that it would be a good thing if Ettor and Haywood could be arrested and clapped out of town, but he said he could not be arrested and railroaded unless they were guilty of some offence. So you see that from the beginning all the forces of the State, the police, militia and the city authorities have done everything they can to suppress the strikers.

Lawrence Letherman, Inspector in charge of the New England Postal Division, his notified Postmaster Cox at Lawrence that he will not tolerate any further delay of mail wagons by the strikers and others who congregate in the streets.

"There have been several complaints filed, stating that the strikers and others had congregated in the streets and delayed the mail wagons.

Delay in Habeas Case.

Because of the delay in the order upon Jesse Brown, keeper of the Lawrence jail, the petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Joseph J. Ettor, the Lawrence strike leader, and Antonio Giovannitti, an Italian editor, could not be argued before Justice Braley in Supreme Court today. Justice Braley fixed the time of argument for next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Lawyer George E. Roewer, Jr., who went into the case after George Fred Williams had publicly stated that the men were held in violation of the law, appeared before Justice Braley this morning and explained the failure to act by saying that Woman's Affections Believed to Be Cause of Terrible Deed in Lawrence.

LAWRENCE, Feb. 3.—Five officers of the State police, detailed here for the Lawrence strike, have dropped all strike duty and are bending their combined energies today to solve one of the most fearful murders that New England ever knew—a four-fold murder committed by a man whose victims show the work of a monster of crime, swift, merciless and hideous beyond comprehension.

So swift was the man that he slew two men and two women in a home in the crowded part of the city without rousing enough attention to interfere with his frightful act or to foil his escape.

So merciless was he that he inflicted a total of fifty-seven cuts, stabs and slashes on his four victims. Then he coolly washed his hands and departed.

Robs One Victim of $485.

A shuddering note of horror marks the crime beyond the ordinary class of murder in that each victim was marked with one particular wound, common to all. This was a deep stab, just back of the right ear, a powerful thrust, aimed to kill. Besides giving these fatal strokes the murdered inflicted fifty-three other wounds on the bodies of his victims.

This signal behind the ear—seemingly given with a stiletto or dagger—marks every corpse. It gives a horrifying suggestion that the murderer left this stab as his personal hall-mark or secret sign, so that others possibly may know that the wholesale murder was committed by a certain person, and breathes of superterious revenge. It rivals the dreadful inventions of the Continental novelists or the fantastic conceptions of Edgar Allen Poe.

Having accomplished this slaughter, the murderer took $485 from the pocket of one victim, left the others unsearched, darted from the house, slackened his pace cunningly when nearing the main street and the militia patrol and made good his escape with the murders on his soul.

The only description of the man, given by a frightened girl, is that he is short, black-eyed and muscular, wore dusty clothes, but had his coat sleeves rolled up to the elbows.

The scene of the murder and the number of victims exceeds, for criminal interest, the actual identity of the victims themselves.

Of the four unfortunates composed a somewhat unusual group, one which would be found only by a community like Lawrence, over-strewn with circumstances drawn people oddly together.

Four Struck Down by Slayer.

The four victims are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Savaria, Mrs. Annie Tanguay Dennis and Sadie Maraois.

The murder took place in the three-room home of the Savarias, on the top floor of the four-story tenement house at No. 137 Valley street.

Joseph Savaria was twenty-three years old, a French-Canadian, formerly in the

CUTTER RUSHES TO SHIP AFIRE AT SEA

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 3.—The Norwegian steamer Texas, bound for Newport News, reported today passing a steamer sailing from Liverpool on fire, twenty miles north-northeast of Bodie Island. Another steamer was standing by. The revenue cutter Onondaga is on her way to the burning vessel.

REBEL CHINESE BLOW UP TRAIN

TIEN TSIN, Feb. 3.—Rebel sympathizers dynamited a railroad bridge at Chinanlin today, wrecking a train and killing many of the passengers. The dynamiters, who are believed really to be brigands, cloaked their depredations under the anti-Manchu cause, cut all the telegraph wires at Chinanlin and looted the district. Fighting is reported to be in progress there.

REBEL JUNTA ELECTS GOMEZ

EL PASO, Feb. 3.—The revolutionary junta here to-day made formal proclamation of the establishment of a provisional government at Juarez, with Emilio Gomez as President. The junta will send a representative to Washington to ask recognition from the American government.

Although Juarez spent a comparatively quiet night, there were indications today that the mutineers who seized the city have repudiated their tentative agreement with the government to turn control over to the federals.

The amazing situation of "a revolution within a revolution" presented itself as a result of the developments, of the rank and file having rejected peace terms made by their officers.

Dispatches from Mexico City say that efforts are being made today to secure some trace of C. P. Robinson, American manager of the Sarlana Mining Company of Guerrero, who is reported to have been seized and carried off by rebels near Cuernavaca. According to the report the insurrectos threatened to shoot Robinson.

The revolution against President Madero's government is spreading rapidly, accompanied by bitter anti-American demonstrations. The revolt has reached Torreon, State of Coahuila, where there are large American mining interests.

Fifty Americans who were passengers on a Mexican Central train which was held up by insurrectos eighty miles south of Juarez are reported to be in the hands of the rebels, and Ambassador Wilson has appealed to the Mexican government to give them safe conduct.

President Taft has ordered Brigadier-General Funston, commanding the department of Texas, to move the troops under him to any point along the Mexican border which, in his judgment, need protection. The order followed reports to the State Department that lives of many Americans were in jeopardy and American interests generally were seriously threatened in Mexico.

ARRAIGN WIFE FOR STABBING

Mrs. Josephine Haynes, of No. 25 Mystic street, Everett, the twenty-year-old bride of a year, who, it is alleged, stabbed her husband with a steel paper cutter as the result of a row at their home in Everett yesterday, inflicting serious wounds, was arraigned in the Malden District Court today before Judge Bites, charged with assault with a knife on her husband, Henry, aged twenty-one.

She pleaded not guilty and was held in $500 for a hearing February 8. Being unable to furnish bonds, Mrs. Haynes was committed to jail.

The couple were married last Easter, Mrs. Haynes coming from Charlestown. Her husband objected to her relatives in Charlestown and forbade his wife visiting them. Mrs. Haynes visited her relatives yesterday, however, and on her return home a discussion arose, which ended in a row. In which, it is alleged, Mrs. Haynes picked up a steel paper cutter having a blade nine inches long, and stabbed her husband in the right side, just missing the kidney, and in the left side under the shoulder.

Haynes, it is said, then grabbed the knife out of his wife's hands and beat it double. He was so weak from loss of blood that he fainted. Neighbors notified the police, who summoned Drs. Clark and Lynch. Haynes is at his home in a serious condition and is very weak from loss of blood. He is being cared for by his mother. He has a good reputation and is a machinist by trade.

ARCANUM GETS BACK MILLIONS

The Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum has secured a writ of mandamus from Justice Braley of the Supreme Judicial Court ordering State Treasurer Stevens to return to the society the $3,902,100 which he holds under the provisions of the Revised Laws as an emergency fund.

The securities have been held on deposit by the State Treasurer under authority of Chapter 110, section 7, of the Revised Laws as an emergency fund. The society claimed that Chapter 628 of the Acts of 1911, which took effect January 1, the new law substantially re-enacted the old statute except that it permits a fraternal organization to invest 20 per cent. of its emergency fund in a building for its own occupation or use.

Mrs. Savaria was twenty years old. She was formerly Kate Clark from Maine. She was married to Savaria three years ago.

Mrs. Annie Tanguay Dennis was twenty years old. She was the wife of John Dennis, who is serving a six-months' sentence in Lawrence jail. Dennis is still in jail and may be eliminated from the murder mystery. The Dennis couple lived at No. 104 Lowell street. At times, especially since her husband went to jail, Mrs. Dennis had visited the Savaria home. She was of French descent and found the Savarias—French husband and American wife—congenial.

The fourth victim's presence in the house remains to be explained.

Drew Savings from Bank.

Shefe Maroon was a Syrian, twenty-seven years old. He lived at No. 290 Oak street with his brother, Bashera Maroon. His home is three-quarters of a mile from the Savaria tenement at No. 137 Valley street.

Last Wednesday Maroon drew $485 from a savings bank, went to Providence on business, then returned to Lawrence.

How he came to be in the Savarias' home will doubtless never be known.

On the body of Mrs. Dennis was found two letters from her husband. The man in jail both threatened his wife and promised to reform. One line was:

"I am pleading from a prison cell, begging you to be true to me."

Such was the singular quarter upon which the murderer fell with deadly violence. There was Savaria, the host; Mrs. Savaria, the hostess; Mrs. Dennis, a friend of the family with her husband in jail, and Maroon, the unattended man, as it were, also the man with the money.

There was sordid evidence of liquor. Empty bottles were found in the blood-splashed house, along with the soulless bodies.

But what conviviality there was in the three-room tenement came to a ghastly stop.

An Unbidden Guest.

Sometime prior to 3 o'clock Friday morning a fifth and presumably an unbidden guest arrived, seeking money, murder or both.

The exact location of the Savaria home was both favorable and unfavorable to this carnival of assassination.

No. 137 Valley street is a four-tenement house, sitting back some fifty feet from Valley street. Two other houses are between it and the street proper. A walk or alley skirts the two front houses and leads to the front door of No. 137, used in common by the four families in the house.

Thus the house is far enough back from Valley street to be unobserved. This is a particular point at this time, for the militia on strike duty patrol Valley street night and day.

So much favored the murderer, especially his escape.

On the other hand, the Savaria tenement is only one of four in the same house. Three families, sleeping lightly on account of the high pitch of terror roused in all Lawrence on account of strike disorders, adjoin the Savaria tenement below and on a level.

Saw Man Slip Away.

Across the hall on the top floor is the home of a family named Muslum. Ida Muslum, eighteen-years-old daughter of the family, did hear a noise from the tenement opposite, and did see a man—by all human calculation, the murderer—slip out of the front door, steal up the alley and escape.

A few downstairs heard nothing.

But neither these two nor others in the surrounding homes heard anything which should indicate four murders in swift succession.

There were no shrieks, no frightful cries for help, no commotion as of people struggling in death grip, overturning furniture, dashing for their lives, dashing frantically anywhere to escape the assassin.

There was no noise of overturning furniture because there was overturned. The Death House, bloodstained from end to end, was found strangely in order, outside of the blood and bodies.

With what frightful speed and accuracy the murderer worked can only be conjectured. But he struck and struck and struck and struck four blows which, in themselves, would have killed each victim. Then, for some reason, either blind red rage or deliberate intent to mutilate, he slashed his victims repeatedly.

A blood-stained towel shows where the murderer delayed, after taking the $485 from Maroon's pocket, to wash his hands. He apparently took his time. He seemed to feel safe. His victims were dead. The house was not aroused.

Locked Door of Tenement.

Cleaning his hands the murdered locked the tenement, ran down stairs and along the alley to the main street. It was then that Ida Muslum, frightened by what little noise she had heard, peered fearfully from the front window of the tenement across the hall and saw the man departing.

She noticed he wore a gray coat, dark trousers, black derby hat and had his sleeves rolled up. Evidently the man had not smeared his sleeves after washing his hands.

The murderer turned along the walk. Halfway to the street he slacked his pace. A militia sentry might be passing. He walked slowly, almost casually, to Valley street, glanced either way, then turned quietly to the left and passed out of sight. He left behind a wholesale murder mystery that has the police baffled.

The four bodies lay in the house still last night. The landlord, Simon Goldberg, was collecting the rents. He came to the Savaria door last. It was locked. Suspecting the tenants knowing the district do not leave rent unattered as light as that, Goldberg stepped across the hall to the Muslum tenement and rapped at his knock.

"Seen anything of the Savarias?" asked Goldberg.

The girl told him she feared something might have happened. She had heard noises the night before.

Find Bodies in Room.

Goldberg went out to Valley street, ife found two policemen, Michael A. Murphy and Matthew McDonald. They broke in the door with one sour and a shudder.

Then Ida Muslum told her story of the man who fled at early morning.

Oscar Bergeron, sixteen years old, on the tenement under the Savarias, say he also heard a slight scuffle upstairs at 3 o'clock. Friday morning. Bergeron also tells of his sister, Eva, a dressmaker in the Washington mills being threatened Thursday for not striking.

This hall is also coupled with the strike disorders, have raised a theory that the four murders might be part of the strike. Eva Bergeron was also aimed at by Bergeron.

But the Savarias, Mrs. Dennis and Maroon had nought to do with the strike and its current unrest. Mrs. Savaria and Mrs. Dennis had worked in mills, but not lately.

Nor does the robbery of Maroon's body coincide with rioting as such.

There is no history of strike and robbery combined, far more hideous than any disorder ever dreamed of, to explain the awful circumstances of the murders.

Husband's Appeal from Jail.

The fifth person in the house—the murderer—may have known Maroon's mother. He may have rescued Maroon's presence there. The letter written from Lawrence jail by John Dennis whom he feared but his wife was becoming indifferent to him.

Mrs. Dennis was a young woman. The murderer may have sought her company. Given the circumstances of the Dennis woman in the house, the presence of Maroon and his money and the arrival of a fifth person, a mate—there is no knowing what horrible complication of motive were at the bottom of the butchery.

This is certain, that the murderer, when he did begin his work, carried it through with terrible dispatch and cowardice. He had not have murdered for Maroon's money. But, having imperilled his work, there was naught to hinder him from taking Maroon's roll of bills, double necessary to a man who would need money to repay.

After examination of the bodies and the premises the police removed them to undertaking shops. Then attention was concentrated on efforts to run down the murderer.

To this duty Captain William H. Proctor of the State police and State Officers Flynn, Bradford, Easton and Sherlock with Inspector Ferrari of Boston, are giving their united attention to-day.

It is a weird coincidence that one of the State officers on the case is named Sherlock, a name associated through the writings of A. Conan Doyle with strange crimes and masterly solution. The Valley street murders in Lawrence are material for a Sherlock Holmes, so horrible as the fiction at detective ever uncovered.

Bloody Finger Prints.

Little have the police to work on. They have a partial description, given by a frightened girl, of a man whom she saw slipping from the house in that it was moonlight or early morning.

They have a pair of Maroon's trousers, where he held his money, bloody finger prints. The murderer, with blood-stained hands, coolly went to Maroon's body, turning his money pocket inside out, leaving the pocket there. The bloody finger-print system used by the police today can be used to identify the fingerprints of the murderer's fingers, but this will not be applicable till the murderer—if a suspect—is in custody.

The police have questioned the militia patrol which guarded Valley street Thursday night and Saturday night. But the murderer slipped along the patrol lines without trouble, so far as the police can learn.

After examining the bodies, the hour of death and summing up all the clews they have, the police ask him to some of their findings, so far as the murderer goes into six words: "He came, he slew, he went."

Money was found on the persons of the other victims, a few dollars each, but the murderer stopped to wash, he did not stop to petty robbery, Solomon's rule contented him.

Girl Was Threatened.

The story of Oscar Bergeron may be related for what it is worth. He is the boy living downstairs. He says:

"My sister Eva is a dresser in the Washington Mills. She was out of work till the soldiers got the streets open. She returned to work Wednesday. She was accosted by a stranger, who said: 'You keep away. You don't go to work.' Then the stranger added something she couldn't understand. My sister was frightened, but kept on working. On account of what was said to her, we have been afraid. Friday morning about three o'clock I heard a scuffle upstairs. I got up, and presently came downstairs and go out. I looked out, but no one was in sight."

Michael Stradna, a Lithuanian employed at the lower Pacific Mills, reported to the police that he went to the soup kitchen to get his food and was threatened by an other Lithuanian, who said:

"There were four throats cut last night. If you go to work yours may be."

But William Tate, the new strike leader, says emphatically that it is foolish to connect this murder with the strikers.

City in Terror.

Lawrence is terror-stricken. Soldiers halt every man who approaches them at fifty paces distant. Men and women seek company when they go about the streets. Lights are kept going in houses all night.

Medical Examiner George W. Dow will hold an autopsy to-day on the bodies.

The great mill strike has almost been forgotten in the excitement over the tragedy in the Valley street house.

The bodies were so hacked identification was difficult. Maroon, the last to be identified, was recognized at the undertaker's, where the body was taken by the priest of the church, whose funeral services were held for Joseph Hamy, who died from a lapsed wound, received in one of the disturbances which have marked the big mill strike.

When the landlord and police entered the death house a sight of horror met their eyes. The room was dark, but there came a gleam of white from near a table on one side. Their flashlights showed the body of a woman, huddled on the floor, her head twisted and rigid in death. The policemen flashed their lights about the room.

Across, lying just at the foot of a sofa, lay the body of a man. In the middle of the floor was another limp heap.

The police ran to summon Captain Sullivan. The other mounted guard, Captain Sullivan arrived, bringing with him a detachment of Company G of Gloucester, who drove away the crowd that had gathered outside the house.

Mrs. Savaria's body, bearing six wounds on the neck and face, lay beside the table. In a bedroom they found her clothing, and blood spatters, showing that she had been attacked there. A trail of blood led to the table. She had staggered into the kitchen, tried to hold herself erect at the table, then collapsed and died.

In the middle of the floor lay the body of Shefe Maroon. It bore twenty-five distinct wounds. The hands and fingers were hacked, showing that he struck out fought desperately to escape death. His right forearm was laid open by a terrible gash, while his neck and face were slashed and hacked.

Beyond him, near a sofa, lay the body of Savaria. It bore fifteen wounds. He had been stabbed while asleep on the floor where he overcame served as a pillow. The murderer apparently had hacked the helpless bodies of his victims, even after life was gone.

Mrs. Annie Tanguay Dennis lay, half on, half off, of a bed in one of the bed rooms. There were eleven wounds about her neck and shoulders.

Just behind the ear, on each body, appeared a tiny round hole, the size of a pencil. In each case, this wound reached the base of the spine, and probably caused instant death.

Ida Muslum told her story to the police.

"A noise awoke me, early Friday morning," she said. "I did not know what it was, at first. Then I heard a scuffle across the hall in the Savaria's apartments. I got out of bed and crept to my door to listen. Through the door I heard low moans, and twice, some one cried out. I was frightened and did not dare open the door.

Then I heard the door of the Savaria apartment open. I heard someone come out, and lock the door behind them. Steps went down the stairs.

"I ran to the window and looked out. It was a bright, moonlight night. A man came out down-stairs, a short, thickset man. He wore a gray overcoat and a black derby hat. His trousers were dark, I think. I did not see his face.

"And each sleeve was rolled up to the elbow. His right hand he carried something. I could not see what it was. A knife or club, it looked like."

The eighteen-year-old girl, in a panic of fear, ran nearly Lawrence people know what she knew at first. Then she feared to tell since the strike started, did not tell any one of what she had heard. She was afraid, and since there had proclivity, before, been speak of strikes and disorder in the Savaria apartment at night, she did not realize the seriousness of the matter.

In the room with the bodies were found empty bottles and scraps of food. It is thought, stupefied by drink, the four were easy prey for the murderer. On the bed beside the Dennis woman lay a bottle of whiskey, half gone.

Find Threatening Letter.

In the stocking of Mrs. Savaria was found a purse. In this purse was $9.57 in money, $8 of it in bills. In the purse also were two letters from Mrs. Dennis to her husband, and from this it was found that the purse was Mrs. Dennis and that she had asked Mrs. Savaria to keep it for him. In the purse also were two letters from Mr. Dennis to his wife. One was a letter of Christmas greeting, the other contained threats. The second letter was written on the back of an engraving, torn from the book, "The Tides of Borneo." The engraving represented a sinking ship, two figures, clinging to a spar, kneeling on her quarterdeck. The engraving is named "The Commodore."

On the back of the engraving, scrawled in lead pencil, is this letter:

Lawrence, Jail, Jan. 20, 1912.

My Darling Wife—

I am writing you these few lines, hoping and trusting that they will find you living true to me, as I am true to my husband. I am pleading from a cold prison cell, trying with my whole heart to me. You say I have had all the chances in the world to go right. Well, I thank you. And if you are living false to me, I promise you and call God that I will never cause you a minute's pain again. I will be true to you. I will do anything you say.

I will let my hand to please you in everything. But, dear, if you break your promises, I swear that I will not stand any more dirty business while I am in jail.

Now I have told you what to do and what I expect you to comply with from me, for I want to get out of here and be a good man, and live happily with you, for I love you dearly.

My regards to your mother and Lily and all. Be sure to write on my papers, and Tuesday, to your loving JONNIE

In the veiled threats in the letter the police at first thought there was a hint at the murderer. But a trip to the jail showed that John Dennis is still serving his six months' sentence.

Orders have been given to militiamen on the morning patrols to halt all persons who approach them at a distance of fifty paces. If the person refuses to halt, the soldiers are under orders to fire at once and take no chances. Lawrence, say the police and the strike leaders, is infested to-day with desperate characters of the worst type, ready for any deed of violence.

The city is in a panic. Women do not venture on the streets alone. In the windows of houses along the way little groups of frightened people may be seen. Fires are kept burning at night, and every precaution against violence is taken.

Smoke of Herbs Cures Catarrh

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way and It Costs Nothing to Try.

This preparation of herbs, leaves, flowers and berries combining no tobacco or habit-forming drug is either smoked in an ordinary clean pipe or smoking tube, and by drawing the medicinal smoke into the mouth and inhaling into the lungs or sending it out through the nostrils in a perfectly natural way, the worst case of Catarrh is relieved.

It is not unpleasant to use, and at the same time it is entirely harmless, and can be used by man, woman or child.

Just as Catarrh is contracted by breathing cold or dust and germ-laden air, just so the following antiseptic smoking remedy goes to all the affected parts of the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs, and is certain to be seen why the ordinary treatments, such as sprays, ointments, salves, liquid or tablet medicines fail—they do not and can not reach all the affected parts.

If you have catarrh of the nose, throat or lungs, choking, stopped-up feeling, colds, catarrhal headaches; if you are given to hawking and spitting, this simple yet scientific treatment should cure you.

An illustrated book which goes thoroughly into the whole question of the cause, cure and prevention of catarrh will, upon request, be sent you by Dr. J. W. Hazel, 210 Walnut street, Atlanta, Ga.

He will, also, mail you free duty free treatment. You will at once see that it is a wonderful remedy, and as it only costs one dollar for the regular treatment, it is within the reach of everyone. It is not necessary to send any money—simply send your name and address and the booklet and free trial package will be mailed you immediately.

New Facts About Eczema.

For years eczema was thought to be incurable, and it is so considered today by many people. But since the compounding of Cadum, eczema is now a curable disease. Cadum has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from distressing, stubborn and disfiguring skin diseases. It is soothing and healing to an inflamed, irritated or diseased skin. It stops the itching at once, and begins healing with the first application. It is antiseptic, and when applied to an open sore or wound prevents infection from disease germs. Cadum quickly acts upon eczema: pimples, sores, blotches, ulcers, eruptions, rashes, rough skin, chafings, itching piles, etc. At all druggists', 10c and 25c per box.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

LUMP SUGAR

Nature's Medicine for Children

Every mother knows the difficulty of getting her children to take medicines, and appreciates the value of sugar as a means of rendering the dose palatable. A dash of peppermint on a lump of sugar will often cure a stomach ache more effectively than a dose of paregoric.

For coughs, colds, sore throats and bronchial coughs yield promptly to the healing action of a few drops of virgin oil of pines, taken with sugar. It is so pleasant to the taste that the little tots are eager for it, and so immediate is its action that every cold that is due to exposure is completely broken up by it inside of twenty-four hours.

Older folks can use oil of pine to equal advantage. It may be procured at any drug store in sealed half-ounce vials bearing the label of the Leach Chemical Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Mixed with a couple of ounces of glycerine and a tumbler full of pure whiskey, the contents of one vial will keep in your entire family free from colds and bronchial troubles for a year.

THE BOOK OF THE HOUR
THROUGH THE MILL

The Autobiography of a Boy Laborer
By AL PRIDDY

A red-blooded account of a mill boy's grapple with bitter circumstances and his plucky achievement of an education

"Who is 'Al Priddy' and what is this book?"—"How did the author get the inside facts about New England mill life?"—"A mine report of an Investigating Committee?"—are questions frequently asked us. There IS a real Al Priddy, a very actual person. The narrator of this interesting tale lives in New England, and the facts he records are taken from his unusual experience. Not long ago this young mill boy graduated with high honors from one of our Eastern colleges, and now, at the age at twenty-nine, stands at the beginning of his life work, determined to stretch out a helping hand.

WHAT SOME REVIEWERS SAY

It is a remarkable book, most effective in style, and telling with great power a vivid picture of the deadening machinery of modern industry.—The Portland Republican.

The story is told with a fidelity to life that is overpowering.—Los Angeles Tribune.

The whole volume is one of graphic realism, sincere that may well be read and pondered over by the people of this mill city who have little actual knowledge of what constitutes the life of a boy who is going "through the mill."—New Bedford Evening Standard.

Deserves reading for its vivid portrayal of the shadows of mill life.—Daily News, Fall River.

Certainly it is a vital document from beginning to end.—Charles F. Richardson, Professor of English, Dartmouth College.

280 pages. Fully illustrated with drawings by Windyaluny T. Benda. Attractively bound. Price $1.25 net.

I WAS A Heavy Drinker

Consumed Quart of Whisky Every 24 Hours.

VICTORY IN 3 DAYS

If you know anyone who drinks alcohol to excess, whether occasionally or daily, a copy of book, "Alcohol and Its Effects," should be sent at once.

I drank beer at first, then gradually developed into a drinker of strong liquors. When drinking beer or whisky I wouldn't hesitate to pass my coat or break a screen window to get at it. Would frequently get drunk over a quart of whisky, rum or gin daily. Was a periodical drinker, drinking for days at a time.

I damaged business, health and social opportunities, made family miserable, lost real friends and became an unsociable, unwelcome borrower all except the misinformed, who cheerfully took my money for the poison they gave me.

For 16 years I kept it up, and I was regarded as a hopeless case. Then I was induced to try a remedy that never has a hopeless case on its hands and

Mothers, Wives, Sisters

While drifting from bad to worse, as all sizes of Kong Alcohol do, I unexpectedly found a true remedy. A sane, up-to-date, by health was quickly restored. I became and am a respectable man, enjoying every home comfort. Freedom was fully cured also. I soberly and naturally lost all desire for drink. Tobacco, tea, coffee, sweets, even tea and coffee, butter, milk and other stimulating foods ceased craving for liquor ceased. I could sleep perfectly, my stomach became all right, nerves tone and other ailments which I now know were due to my belligerent strong drink.

WONDERFUL

It was done in 3 days and I had tried upon still power or nerve. I wasn't put to sleep by the use of alcohol state has no will power while drinking. I took the remedy voluntarily, of my own free will and I decided to do so after having observed cures from others. My success has been marvelous, for I have a sensible, common sense way of explaining and sending to any home, anywhere. My friendship have saved inquiries of drinkers. I am pleased to help any person notable in all walks of life, including three physicians, who have taken the remedy and given testimonials by the thousands. Any one of us is within you can verify. Many were saved from the grim habit because you knew something of the cure and others who did not have any will power left, were rescued without further knowledge on the part of members, or friends. The utter relief of taking my liquor, the absence of craving, the clearness of head, the steadiness of nerve and the improved appetite.

I tell about the secret in my book, which I send FREE to every person interested. Every book who takes alcohol in any form to excess. My one purpose in life is to save the drunkard. I prefer to every woman's wife victim has no sympathy. What I have done for others I can do for you. Whether you be for mine or my profession of periodical drinkers. Think of it—a complete and delightful overcoming of drink craving in three days. Just a few days and Monday night—at any other by home.

FOR MY WOMEN, ANY AGE.

To relatives, friends, or employers I urge that you write me at once. Tell me something about the victim, and I will send you my book and a letter of advice, and my book—changer despair to joy.

ABSOLUTELY FREE

I will send you my book, in plain wrapper, personally mailed. It contains the most startling scientific discovery, and gives valuable information. Remember, it costs nothing to investigate. It may be the means of saving you from untimely drunkard's grave and be lasting effect. Remember, it costs nothing and you simply write that you want it. Correspondence strictly confidential. DIX REFUSES TO PARDON BRANDT

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Governor Dix has denied the application of Foulke E. Brandt for clemency. Brandt is the former cashier of Mortimer L. Schiff, and is serving a thirty-year sentence in the Dannemora Prison for the theft of two stickpins from the house of Mr. Schiff.

Governor Dix hurried from Albany before his decision was made public.

In denying a pardon or commutation of sentence to Brandt Governor Dix ordered all records in the case sealed.

These records included:

1. A recommendation for clemency by District Attorney Whitman of New York County, where Brandt was tried, and a review of the case showing that Brandt's conviction was absolutely justified.

2. The recommendation of the pardon clerk for clemency.

3. The recommendation of Colonel Joseph F. Scott, Superintendent of Prisons, for clemency.

4. A record of the proceedings of the court in which Brandt appeared and documents showing that the rank and kind of perjury was committed in an attempt to assail Brandt's previous record and complete refutation of the charges thus made against him.

Governor's Statement.

Governor Dix's decision was. It is understood, known by the Schiff attorneys Thursday night, at which time the Governor was in New York city.

The Governor had been two ways in reviewing the reports on the case and arriving at a decision. He had promised to announce it at the hour set for his daily meeting with the representatives of the press. It was an hour later when it arrived. The Governor had already departed for the executive mansion, leaving his legal counsel, Seymour Van Santvoord, to make public his decision and explain the reasons for it. Mr. Van Santvoord gave out the following statement:

The application for a commutation of the sentence of Lawrence Foulke Brandt is denied. There seems to have been an attempt to inject mystery into this case, but there is no mystery. The prisoner made application for clemency and he was afforded every opportunity to present his plea in full. I personally asked for a report from the District Attorney and the presiding judge, which have been duly filed and received no other papers. There have been no arguments, orally or by brief. No written or oral statement whatever from the complainant in the original case, or any one acting in his behalf, has been received. I have denied executive clemency and ordered the record.

(Signed) JOHN A. DIX.

Tremendous Power Used.

The case has been before Governor Dix since early in November. Its consideration was progressing with the utmost secrecy until a visit of District Attorney Whitman upon the Governor made public the machinery that was being worked with the arrest, conviction and sentence of the young Scandinavian. It is asserting that he was railroaded to prison for a crime he took upon himself because of his sense of honor.

It is known that all the power at the command of a great banking house was being exerted against the young convict. Lawyers of national prominence legally and politically were engaged to indorse the Governor that the case was not fully attended to. Brandt would be misdirected.

Latest Leap Year Bride and Groom

MR AND MRS MATHEW MARA

Mrs. Mathew Mara of Chelsea was Helena Wesolowsk before she popped the question, and was married by a justice of the peace in Pemberton square.

ANOTHER LEAP YEAR ROMANCE

Still another couple has entered the field for the AMERICAN'S twenty-five-dollar leap year prize.

The latest couple to be married, after a proposal by the young woman, is Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Mara of Chelsea. Until their marriage yesterday, by a justice of the peace in Pemberton square, Mrs. Mara was Helena Wesolowsk.

Blushing prettily Mrs. Mara called at the AMERICAN office, accompanied by her husband, and acknowledged that she had asked him in marriage. And her husband bashfully confirmed his wife's statement with a nod of the head.

Mrs. Mara is nineteen years of age. Her husband is twenty-two. Their marriage was the culmination of a boy and girl attachment in Poland ten years ago.

Sweethearts in Poland.

The pretty bride told the Leap Year Editor that she had asked Mara to marry her because she knew she loved him and did not wish to wait until he got on his courageed to the necessary point to propose. "Mathew and I were sweethearts in Poland, where we were boy and girl," she said. "When we were introduced several months ago, I instantly recognized the sweetheart of my girlhood. He soon renewed calling on me. I was then living with my aunt and No. 37 Medford street, Chelsea.

"I knew that Mathew loved me, but thought he was lacking in courage and I did not wish to wait until he mustered up his nerve to ask me. So about four weeks ago I simply asked if he would marry me and he accepted.

"Since then he told me that he was glad I asked him. He's so bashful, you know.

Handy for Housekeeping.

"When I proposed I did not know about the AMERICAN'S Leap Year offer. Now that I know of it I am glad. The twenty-five dollars, if we win it, will be a handy thing, now that we are about to set up housekeeping."

"I think in any case was an exceptional one. I shouldn't advise the average girl to propose. It is too forward. In our case we both knew we loved each other. No. I do not believe in women suffrage. I don't think the time is ripe for women to vote."

And now, Mrs. Mara doesn't regret the step she has taken, as was evidenced by happy smile that wreathed her face.

MISS POLLARD A BRIDE TODAY

Among the most prominent weddings of early New Year was that of Miss Anne Kilster Pollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard of Beacon street, Brookline, and J. Murray Kay, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Murray Kay also of Brookline, this afternoon.

The wedding took place in the Church of Our Saviour, Longwood, and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bride is an exceptionally pretty girl and in her bridal roses makes a most interesting picture.

She had chosen for her matron of honor, Mrs. Richard G. Hoare, of Philadelphia, while Miss Elsie Pollard, one of the pretty little host year's debutantes, was the maid of honor.

Serving as bridesmaids were the bride's sister Miss Cecile Pauline, Katherine and Priscilla Pollard.

John Wing Prentiss of New York was best man, and the ushers included George S. Kay, Irving Wilmer Bacon, Thornton Nelson Perkins and James G. Blaine, 3d.

Mr. Kay gave his fraternity brother dinner at the Union Club on Wednesday evening, when the guests included his best man and ushers. Mr. Kay is a well known young man and is prominent in the college set of Harvard men about town. He also belongs to the Porcellian and Mrs. Rutherford Stuyvesant Prentiss of New York's Mrs. Herbert Burgess of Chestnut Hill and the Misses Beacon and Mary Murray Kay.

On Thursday evening Mrs. Kay, mother of the groom, entertained about twenty of the bridal party at her home in Brookline.

BACHELORS GIVE SOMERSET DANCE

A "Country Breakfast" at 3:30 a. m., brought to an end the ball fifty feet less Boston bachelors gave at the Hotel Somerset to the debutantes of last year and the year before. It was a gentle early hour in which to commence the good eatables they might enjoy each morning, if they so desired, but the ices, the ball of fare bacon, sausages and corn pone. The delighted merry-makers began to realize something about an old colonial early evening the road to a man's heart.

There were 150 guests in the receiving line were Mrs. James Lawrence of Groton; Mrs. Richard A. Hall, Mrs. Bryce J. Allan and Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson. The committee in charge included Randolph C. Coxe, Samuel D. Parker, Benjamin Joy, William Prescott Wolcott, Jr., and relatives of the late D. Howard Spear of Bath, Me., are today trying to learn the identity and whereabouts of a woman who, posing as a widow of the deceased, has entered a claim for her share of the Spear estate through William M. Robinson, a Boston attorney.

The assertion that Mr. Spear had left a widow came as a great surprise, as it was not known that he had ever married after his first wife died.

The woman alleged to be a widow entered the case when Judge James S. Lowell of the Suffolk County Court of Probate at Bath, Me., received a line from Attorney Robinson requesting information as to what steps had been taken in regard to settling the estate. The letter also requested the appearance of Mr. Robinson in the case to be filed in behalf of the "widow." Judge Lowell ordered the register of the court to enter Mr. Robinson's appearance as requested.

D. Howard Spear was the head of the Kelley, Spear Shipbuilding Company, and served as mayor of Bath, Me., in 1906. He was tendered the nomination a year later, but declined. He died at his home on Summer street, Bath, after a long illness. At the time of his death he was vice-president of the Bath Trust Company.

The deceased was married to Miss Ida Sawyer on December 28, 1875. They lived happily together until she died on April 26, 1906.

The appearance of this other woman in the case has created a sensation, for it was believed Mrs. F. R. E. Dean of Dorchester, a sister, was the nearest relative. Mrs. Dean declared today that her brother had never married a second time, and there surely must be some mistake. Mrs. Dean was appointed administratrix of the estate at the last session of the Probate Court.

Harry B. Sawyer, who assumed charge of the shipbuilding business upon the death of Mr. Spear, declined today to say that anything was news to him. He said he had never heard of Mr. Spear marrying a second time, and announced the new claimant would have to produce proof that she is a widow of the deceased.

CHANGE ST. PATRICK'S DAY TO SUIT TAFT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—President Taft will be asked to set his own date for the celebration of the semi-centennial anniversary of St. Patrick in Savannah, Ga., today, by a delegation of citizens from that city. Mayor Lewis Pauley, Katherine and Priscilla Pollard.

John Wing Prentiss of New York was best man, and the ushers included George S. Kay, Irving Wilmer Bacon, Thornton Nelson Perkins and James G. Blaine, 3d.

Mr. Kay gave his fraternity brother dinner at the Union Club on Wednesday evening, when the guests included his best man and ushers. Mr. Kay is a well known young man and is prominent in the college set of Harvard men about town. He also belongs to the Porcellian and Mrs. Rutherford Stuyvesant Prentiss of New York's Mrs. Herbert Burgess of Chestnut Hill and the Misses Beacon and Mary Murray Kay.

On Thursday evening Mrs. Kay, mother of the groom, entertained about twenty of the bridal party at her home in Brookline.

BACHELORS GIVE SOMERSET DANCE

A "Country Breakfast" at 3:30 a. m., brought to an end the ball fifty feet less Boston bachelors gave at the Hotel Somerset to the debutantes of last year and the year before. It was a gentle early hour in which to commence the good eatables they might enjoy each morning, if they so desired, but the ices, the ball of fare bacon, sausages and corn pone. The delighted merry-makers began to realize something about an old colonial early evening the road to a man's heart.

There were 150 guests in the receiving line were Mrs. James Lawrence of Groton; Mrs. Richard A. Hall, Mrs. Bryce J. Allan and Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson. The committee in charge included Randolph C. Coxe, Samuel D. Parker, Benjamin Joy, William Prescott Wolcott, Jr.,

MISS GALLAGHER, THE SINGER WHO WEDS ON FEB. 14

MARGUERITE GALLAGHER

Miss Marguerite Helen Gallagher studied abroad and is widely known in musical circles. Her marriage to Mr. Rose takes place on St. Valentine's Day.

VALENTINE FOR LOUIS M. BOAS

A wedding of interest in musical and theatrical circles will take place February 14, at St. Valentine's Day, when Miss Marguerite Helen Gallagher of South Boston is married to Louis Marlen Boas of Providence, R. I., general manager of the southern house of the Marcus Loew theatrical enterprises of New York. The wedding will take place at the Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston.

Miss Gallagher is widely known in musical circles. She is a graduate of the St. Joseph's Academy of Dorchester, Mass., and attended the New England Conservatory of Music. She continued her musical studies in Paris under the tutelage of Gabriel Leperre.

Miss Gallagher is a protege of Vice-President Benjamin Piercy of the Gaiety Theatre Company. Having heard her sing at a concert, Mr. Brown was so much impressed by the rare charm of her voice that he offered to send her abroad to study.

Mr. Boas, the groom-elect, is a graduate of Brown University, and a member of an old Providence family. He has been the Eastern manager and a large stockholder in the Loew enterprises for some time. Mr. Boas is thirty years old and Miss Gallagher twenty-five.

Miss Gallagher, after the wedding, will continue her career. She is anxious to find a place on the operatic stage. She won her fame at a dinner party in Dorchester about two years ago. It was said that she sang a cycle of love at first sight.

Miss Madeline Gallagher, a sister of the bride, also a well-known singer, will act as bridesmaid.

After a honeymoon trip to Lakewood, N. J., and other points, Mr. and Mrs. Boas will be at home to their friends at No. 786 Broadway, South Boston.

WOBURN LIQUOR CASES SETTLED

Judge Littlefield in the Fourth District Court at Woburn today disposed of many liquor cases resulting from the many raids by the police ten weeks ago, of drug stores and other places where liquor was being sold illegally. The cases against Samuel Hinkley, a druggist, was the only one tried, the other cases hinging upon the result of this case.

Judge Littlefield found Hinkley guilty, and continued the case for one year on condition that no illegal sale of liquor be made by Hinkley during that time. Edward H. Callahan, Daniel W. Veiley, William E. Young and Cyril B. Dawson, druggists, pleaded guilty and the same disposition was made in each of their cases.

James Mahoney, James McDonald, Thomas F. Desmond, John Mealey, Owen McCall and Edward James, common pleaders, were ordered to pay $50 each, all except Mealey, and each were fined $250 each. Sentence was suspended for six weeks to give the defendants an opportunity to appeal the fines.

LYNN GIRL SAVES MAN IN SHAFTING

Elizabeth Burns, a twenty-year-old shoe stitcher of Lynn, proved herself a heroine when, while 200 girls employed in the stitching room of the Thompson-Crooker factory fainted in hysterics or else clung to the leg of Joseph Chevrier, an assistant machinist, and prevented his head and shoulders from falling down in a place of shafting in which he had become entangled, Edward Hench, a machinist, shut off the power. The girl never released her hold until cows from the other parts of the factory unclasped her hands.

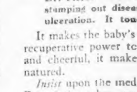
A Baby in the House

No joy or pleasure on this earth quite equals that which comes into the home when baby arrives. Who can describe the happiness of man and woman, joined in wedlock, as they look upon the delicate mite that is blood of their blood and flesh of their flesh? And who can depict the hopelessness and dejection that fall over about the home where the wife is incapable of becoming a mother? Barrenness proceeds from some derangement of the distinctly feminine organs. Many of the common ailments known as "female troubles" cause it.



Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription overcomes barrenness by stamping out diseases of women, and by healing and curing ulceration. It tones up the system and restores strength.

It makes the baby's coming almost painless, and gives wonderful recuperative power to the patient. By making the mother strong and cheerful, it makes the little one healthy, vigorous and good natured.

Insist upon the medicine dealer giving you Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription when you ask for it. Substitutes are often dangerous.

For 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, you can get a free copy of that celebrated doctor book, newly revised, up-to-date edition—the Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, copiously illustrated with wood-cuts and colored plates. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

STRIKE COMMITTEE PROTESTS TO GOVERNOR IN BEHALF OF LEADERS

after applied for the writ yesterday, it became ill and because of a misunderstanding with his brother lawyer in the case.

Lawyer Roewer's Plea.

The case is corpus proceedings were brought on the petition of Joseph Delardi, the financial secretary of the Lawrence strike committee. The charges against Ettor and Giovannitti are that they accessories before the fact in the murder of Anna Lo Pezzi, who was shot and killed in a strike riot. These charges are based upon speeches made by Ettor and Giovannitti, which are claimed to have incited violence.

On the charge of murder, the men were held without bail, and Lawyer Roewer's petition asks for reasonable bail on the ground that the men are unjustly held.

Lawyer Roewer declared in the petition that to the complaint against Ettor it is stated that the principal felon is unknown, that the Commonwealth has not informed him as to who was the principal felon, that therefore necessaries could not be legally held and that by the arrest of the petitioner, Anna Lo Pezzi was not murdered.

Protest to Governor.

Almost at the same time a delegation of two women and two men, representing the textile strikers' executive committee, walked upon Governor Foss to protest to the holding of the two strike leaders.

The protest committee was chosen at a secret meeting of the strikers following a conference with Leone Mucci of this city, who is acting as counsel for the strikers.

At the open session of the committee which followed the efforts which are being made to secure the release of Ettor and Giovannitti were described and on the suggestion of Mucci the four strikers were designated to assist him.

Plans for the visit to the Governor were completed and the trip to the State House was agreed upon.

It is understood, however, that the militia forces are prepared to fight the action of the strikers and have gathered a long record purporting to be a life history of Ettor in which various strike breaking episodes and other acts are given in detail.

Anxious to Bail Ettor.

Many sentiments informed and feelings expressed at the meeting that the committee has no information as to who the alleged principal is and that consequently no step can be taken to appear in behalf of such principal, and none petitioner is informed and believes any therefore that the principal felon is unknown and dead.

The petition prays that a writ of habeas corpus may be issued directed to the Judge of the Superior Court and the Sheriff of Essex County and that Ettor shall be admitted to bail.

On the other hand detectives employed by mill owners are ready to present a mass of evidence to the grand jury which will result in this manner it is hoped to keep the two strike leaders behind the bars.

Ettor's record, according to the detectives' reports, is long and varied. It includes a conviction for inciting riots in Canada and accusations of his private life in connection with the Thaw scandals of Atlanta.

Ettor, as organizer and general executive member of the Industrial Workers of the World, is charged with responsibility for the disturbances at Mc Keen's Rocks in 1909, during the Pressed Steel Car strike and during the Cumberland strike.

The report goes on to say that he assisted Joe Ball, Joe Angelo, Joe Caruso, Joe Garlano, Rossiters, Greeks, Slavs, Poles and Germans in the Pressed Steel Car strike. It is alleged, now advised to use violence if the demands made upon the steel company were not granted.

Flag Insult Charged.

At this time the police and State constabulary were on the scene of the disturbance, and it is alleged that because the lack of violence was preached several strikers were arrested.

Again, in Sanborn, Wash., trouble was started in that city by Ettor. He called upon the strikers to go to Spokane to help the strike among the lumber jacks there. He also called the United States flag a "bridge of slaughter," and during Memorial Day 1910, he told the United States colors from a platform in Spokane and later pointed to the flag and said: "This is the symbol of hypocrisy, of lies, of slavery, of prostitution, of the degradation of the human race."

The report next places Ettor in Pittsburg and tells of the strike which he fomented there. Ettor, the report says, organized the Steel Workers' Union in Pittsburg and places the National Tube Company, the Standard Steel Car Company and others as victims.

Only since former he elected himself chairman of the executive committee and organized the Lawrence strike, the report and expenditures of the strike. All the books were handed to Ettor, it is said, and no one was allowed to see the disbursements of which Ettor was the treasurer.

The report says that in February, 1910, members of the McKees Rocks local demanded that the books be published. Ettor audited the books and found them in good order.

Shortly after this a new auditor examined the books and discrepancies were found. It is alleged. The next day the McKees Rocks secretary called a meeting and called a general meeting to discuss the financial secretary's action.

The finance secretary read the report claiming that shortly he was expelled from the union and he was compelled to leave town. Ettor was trying to break up the union. Soon after Ettor left Pittsburg and the locals dissolved.

May Free Strike Leaders.

Ettor's associates have to a great extent, been released on bail, among the known and among them was Joseph Lalicasle-wicz, alias Joseph Smith. He was a bookkeeper for the Ettor faction.

In the first step of the habeas corpus proceedings in the case of Ettor, it appeared in the Supreme Judicial Court before Justice Sheldon that Attorney Edwin D. Mahoney, counsel for Ettor and Arturo Giovannitti, had filed a petition for writs of habeas corpus for the two men, who are held in the Lawrence jail without bail on a charge of murder in connection with the killing of Anna Lo Pezzi, who was shot during the Lawrence strike riot in January. The petitions were allotted to Justice Sheldon, who then ordered that the application for the writ be held over until Monday, when it will be heard by Judge Bradley and under the order has been continued until Wednesday, when the hearing on the petitions will be resumed.

Ettor and Giovannitti were present in the court room during Judge Bradley's order when they were told that the petitions for writs of habeas corpus had been continued.

Joseph Pezzi, a street sweeper in Lawrence, was killed by the police during the second day of the strike. Ettor and Giovannitti were arrested the following day charged with murder, as accessories to the murder of Anna Lo Pezzi.

Attorney Mahoney filed the petitions signed by Joseph Delardi, the strike leader, and by Attorney Arthur D. George, E. Roewer Jr., counsel for the strikers, whereby the latter, it is contended, have a right to be brought to court, the petitioners claim.

In the Ettor petition it is stated that the petitioner is informed and believes on a warrant issued by the police court, charged with the murder of Anna Lo Pezzi, the fact of a murder, and that the principal felon is

MISS BROZIA AT BEST AS 'MANON'

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Massenet's tuneful and charming "Manon" was the bill at the opera last night, and the management presented it with what was practically a French cast.

It was in many respects one of the most satisfying offerings of the season. Massenet composed it in his youth, when melodies flowed easily from his brain.

The novel of "Manon Lescaut" is tragedy, and so appealed to Puccini when he turned it into opera, but the Frenchman plainly considered Manon's exploits the subject for suites rather than tears, and the inevitable death at the end he makes as painless as possible.

The music is light and airy, though there is pensiveness and sadness in Manon's theme. Some of it is quite on the order of comic opera.

Zina Brozia found in the title part a role which might have been composed for her. She is a Parisienne like Manon. She knows the type which fascinates the young gentlemen of France, and her dramatic conception of the role cannot be overpraised.

In the first act she was very sweet and simple, and yet she deftly displayed the frivolous heart of Manon both in her song and in the duet.

As the opera proceeded she grew stronger, and the last tragic scene was good beyond her. Vocally, too, Miss Brozia was at her best. Here was music she loved to sing, and she gave it every shade of meaning. Her voice was sweet and skillfully handled.

Des Grieux is the best part of Edmond Clement, who reappears after several weeks' absence. It cannot be denied that his voice is less beautiful than last season, and his work last night suffers by his incomparable performance of "Manon" with Garden and Lipkowska.

There was a persistent tremulo, a tonal uncertainty that displeased, and yet he sang the famous second act song beautifully.

Riddez as Lescaut was an agreeable surprise. He acted with true humor and sang tunefully and well. Bernice Elbert, Madeleine D'Olige and Florence DeCourcy were very winning as the three light ladies, and so was Lucette de Mardones as the Count, and Barreau as De Bretigny were excellent.

Mr. Caplet conducted with proper appreciation of the character of the music.

CARUSO ACQUITTED OF SINGER'S CHARGE

MILAN, Feb. 3.—Enrico Caruso was acquitted of charges made against him by Ada Giachetti, the prima donna, that he had intercepted a letter from Oscar Hammerstein offering her a $50,000 contract to sing at the Manhattan Opera House in New York. The witness Guglielmo Ciarlo has been charged with conspiracy and held for trial. The courts investigated the case, which revealed unbinding bribery and corruption on the part of Tosco Micalizi, who is described as a New York journalist. Caruso's other lawsuit wherein another Milanese woman accused him of breach of promise and demands $50,000 damages, will be tried next week.

DENY OPPOSITION TO THE GRAND TRUNK

Members of the State Senate were quick be taken up Monday and a report made to-day to set at rest a rumor which gained circulation on Beacon Hill that the petition of the Grand Trunk Railway for permission to extend its lines to Boston would meet with defeat in that body.

The rumor was started by the failure of the Senate Committee on Rules to act upon the petition yesterday and allow it to go into the Senate immediately, instead of putting over action until Monday, to which time the Senate has adjourned.

The members of the committee, five in number, when informed today of the rumor, gave an explanation showing that circumstances prevented action being taken by them yesterday. They point out that several important measures were before the Senate yesterday, including several orders relative to an investigation of the Lawrence strike, which required their presence in the Senate chamber.

Held up by Strike Order.

It was therefore impossible, they declare, for the Rules Committee to hold a meeting yesterday to consider the petition. It has since been learned from the office of the Clerk of the House but a few minutes before the opening of the session of the Senate.

In order to expedite matters as far as possible, they said that the petition would be taken up Monday.

No Fear of Defeat.

President Greenwood said: "The action of the Rules Committee in putting consideration of the Grand Trunk petition over until Monday was necessitated by the many important measures pending before the Senate yesterday. There is no ground for suspicion that this action is indicative of hostility to the Grand Trunk.

"I am given to understand in favor of the entrance of the Grand Trunk today as it was on the day that I declared myself in favor of the Grand Trunk when polled by the AMERICAN two weeks ago."

Senator Blanchard: "There is absolutely nothing to the rumor that the Rules Committee is opposed to the Grand Trunk."

Senator Barnes: "I told the AMERICAN two weeks ago that I was in favor of the Grand Trunk coming into Boston. I have not seen any reason for changing that attitude."

Senator Lomasney: "The Grand Trunk petition is going through."

No Opposition Request.

President Greenwood, who is also chairman of the Rules Committee, said that as no one had yet requested to be heard by the committee in opposition to the Grand Trunk petition, it is probable that Judge Kenefick, counsel for the Grand Trunk, will not even be asked to appear before the committee.

The question to be considered by the Senate Committee on Rules is whether the rules should be suspended to admit the Grand Trunk measure for consideration by this year's Legislature.

The rule which needs to be suspended is known as Joint Rule 12, which provides that petitions of railroad companies for permission to extend their corporate powers which have not been advertised during three successive weeks before having presented to the Legislature, as required by law, shall be referred to the next General Court.

The House of Representatives has by a unanimous vote already suspended this rule and admitted the petition. This action was taken on Thursday. The petition would have gone right into the Senate yesterday but for a rule of that body requiring that all matters of legislation before being considered by it shall be considered by the Senate Committee on Rules.

Look for Favorable Report.

This is the reason why the Grand Trunk petition happens to be in the hands of the Committee on Rules at the present time.

The Rules Committee is expected to report in favor of the suspension of the rules by a unanimous vote on Monday. A favorable report will be necessary in the Senate to suspend the rules. Thirty-six Senators in the AMERICAN poll declared themselves in favor of the admission of the Grand Trunk. Unless the unexpected happens the petition will, therefore, be admitted.

In the meantime the lobbyists sent up to the State House by the New Haven Railroad to defeat the Grand Trunk have apparently given up hope of preventing the admittance of the Grand Trunk petition for consideration. Legislators who favor allowing the Grand Trunk to come into Boston, therefore, admit that the Senate will turn all their efforts now to securing the rejection of the order read from engrossment to the Joint Order reported by the Committee on Railroads, providing for an order introduced by Representative Martin M. Lomasney calling for an investigation of the general railroad situation in the New England.

Death of the Joker.

The Dean amendment, which was introduced by Representative Charles A. Dean of Wakefield, deadened the joke in the order which would have resulted in indefinitely delaying the passage of any Grand Trunk legislation. The order was in the form of a provision in the order providing for an investigation by the Committee of the Legislature and the Railroad Commission as to "whether or not it is desirable for the Grand Trunk and the Port of Boston or of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts that the question of into the Commonwealth of any railroad not now operating within said Commonwealth, and the intentions or purposes of such railroads in so seeking to enter the State."

This applied directly to the Grand Trunk plan to build a pier, according to the friends of the Grand Trunk, was to have the unfilled investigation resolve itself into the Legislature dies and thereby prevent the entrance of the Grand Trunk this year.

Representative Dean's amendment deadened this joker by providing that the investigating board to report on so much of the order as referred to the State Board by March 30. The amendment was unanimously adopted by the House.

Senators in Favor.

The order and the Dean amendment are before the Senate Committee on Rules along with the Grand Trunk petition. It is expected that the committee will report on this matter at the same time that it reports on the Grand Trunk petition. The question in the Senate will be on the passage of the order as amended.

The members of the State Senate who have expressed themselves in favor of the Grand Trunk petition in the last week in the AMERICAN are: Senators Claude L. Allen of Worcester, Frederick Bancroft of Lowell, George L. Barnes of Weymouth, Frank A. Brackett of Lowell, Charles F. Blanchard of Somerville, Charles H. Brown of Medford, Arthur D. Chamberlain of Milford, Charles S. Clance of Dighton, Calvin Coolidge of Northampton, Edward P. Denny of Worcester, Lotte Eldridge of Yarmouth, Eugene Foss of Milton, Henry Heffernan of Boston, Thomas M. Jones of Boston, Joseph H. Lomasney of Boston, John H. Mack of Holyoke, Daniel J. KINNELL CHAIN SHOES

Give Your Horse 4 Sure Feet To Work On!

EVERY HORSE THAT WEARS KINNELL-CHAIN-SHOES IS ENABLED TO STAND UP AND DO A FULL DAY'S WORK—

EVEN ON ICY ASPHALT.

JOHN WANAMAKER, Philadelphia, says of the Kinnell-Chain-Shoes: "One pair of horses will do the work of four without them. We found that out from actual test here in the City."

"Fit like a glove, and go on as easily." Save their cost in one day.

THERE'S THE REASON

Never grow dull. Sharp till the finish, and then more. Just the thing to put on for an hour or two mornings and evenings when the streets are slippery.

To Select right size, measure across here

KINNELL-CHAIN-SHOES not only absolutely PREVENT SLIPPING but also

Protect the Frog and Sole From Injury

because every time the horse puts his weight on his foot the frog presses up against the shoe and the ground that bear all the weight, turn past way over, thus shortening and tightening all four cords and making a suspension bridge over the hollow of the foot. When the horse lifts his feet, the chains loosen slightly and the snow shakes out.

Since the invention of the Kinnell-Chain-Shoes which open FOR THE SNOW and CLOSE FOR THE ASPHALT, NO HORSE NEED SLIP OR STUMBLE and it is time to put on your shoes.

Put a set on your horse and make a noise like an auto.

Every can carry a set of Kinnell-Chain-Shoes in his wagon, and every CUTTEN who has once used them will NEVER BE WITHOUT THEM. Put on your horse's feet in a MINUTE and go along as though the street were dry.

After one trial, you will never be without them.

To Horse Owners—

Use Kinnell-Chain-Shoes and save your horses sprained joints and broken legs. Prevention is better than cure.

To Drivers—Use KINNELL-CHAIN-SHOES and get home to supper on time.

MAKES 201ST VISIT TO CELL

Jean Shaw, sixty-five years old, with no home, was arrested last night for the 201st time, and Thanksgiving Day was arraigned before Judge Burke in the Municipal Court and held in $200 bail. Shaw, who was picked up last night by a patrolman on Court street, West End, on the evening of the day he was released from the State Farm.

When Patrolman Wyman, who arrested him, took the stand Shaw, acting as his own attorney, cross-examined him thus:

"How many men of the Joy street station have arrested me?"

"I thing fifty would cover it," said the officer.

"How many times have you had the pleasure?"

"In the thirty-seven years I have been on the force, I believe I have locked you up about seventy-five times."

Shaw told Judge Burke he was locked up on general principles this time, for being out on bail on a charge of which he had been found not guilty.

"I'm not a drunkard," he said. "I'm a sick man and a special mechanic and can get work at any time.

MAINE WRECK IS FLOATED

HAVANA, Feb. 3.—Three more bodies have been found in the bow of the wrecked battleship Maine. The long wrecking operations were crowned with success when the dislocated section, which was injured by the explosion and which comprises approximately half the total length of the ill-fated vessel, was set afloat. The hull, into which a bulkhead has been fitted, proved perfectly watertight.

What Eczema is

Eczema is disease of the blood and affects all parts of the body—the skin, flesh, nerves, bones, glands and even organs. Symptoms are: Formation of pimples or patches may swell and the itching is so great that the victim tears off clothes, tears flesh and blood and acts like a person out of matter. In some the skin cracks and bleeds. Itching is terrible. Is always getting worse. Is hereditary. Is in the blood. Form no parts of the body, where the clothing comes in contact.

$2,376 PHELPS FUND FIGURE

The fund raised by the Globe for the relief of the family of Silas N. Phelps has reached $2,376.40. Contributions are being received from all over New England, and even as far away as New York persons interested in the welfare of the Phelps family are subscribing to the fund. The trustees, however, are still in doubt as to whether the fund will be sufficient to care for the Phelps children in the future.

WRECKED LINER TOWED TO PORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Wireless dispatches received here today state that the British steamer Nanshan, which was disabled with the steamship Alleghany of the Hamburg-American line, off the Virginia coast, is being conveyed to Norfolk, Va., by the United States revenue cutter Onondaga. The passengers and crew of the Alleghany, which sank following the crash, are on board the revenue cutter and all lives are reported lost.

CORBETT'S CHAT

Various Items of Interest To the Business Public :: ::

By E. A. CORBETT

Brevity is the backbone of business as well as the soul of wit. A bolted fact, a pithy pointer, concerning tradesmen, is often better than a column article. Even two lines in the AMERICAN, which has nearly a million readers, will be a merchant considerable publicity. To-day my trade gossip will have reference to some of the enterprising people in Boston, Somerville, N. H., Andover, Mass., Chelsea and elsewhere.

CLEARANCE SALE AT WOLF'S.

Lest Thanksgiving spatula the big, busy store of Wolf's, "My Clothier," corner of Hanover and Portland streets, closed for stock-taking and the marking down of prices on Winter garments. Result: A grand, wind-up sacrifice sale is now on in full career. Big bargains here in every department. Look at the attractive show windows! Then go in!

FAR EXCELLENCE IN LUNCH.

I wish to personally recommend Walton's lunch. I visited the new branch at Washington street and was agreeably surprised to find such excellent food and cleanliness in a restaurant. Certainly by D. H. Walton has made a decided hit with his Boston Maid's Luncheon system here in Boston. The food is equal to that found at our best hotels.

Somersworth, N. H.

The Somersworth and Berwick Board of Trade is very much alive to the business interests, as evidenced by the fact that Hon. Neil, an able attorney who has been in business since 1883, will gladly furnish information to manufacturers or others in a small city in this section. Exemption from taxation for ten years is one of the inducements offered. The postal facilities are O. K. with faithful A. L. Fannce, postmaster, in charge.

The Somersworth National Bank, solid and substantial, is member of the American Bankers' Association. It does a general depository, and issues drafts, travelers' checks and letters of credit available in all parts of the world. Banking by mail is a feature. Its resources are over $441,000. Jesse H. Horne is president, and E. A. Leighton, cashier.

The First National Bank was founded in 1846, (took present name in 1909) and grows stronger financially every year. W. H. Grant is president; Frederick W. Hickner, cashier. M. Hicker has always lived here.

G. W. Nutter's drug store was established eighteen years ago. Carries complete stock, including Rexall goods. Clerk is a certain pharmacist. He has the finest stores in Concord and Salmon Falls, and the Great Falls Hotel, Eli C. Wentworth, proprietor, and Herman Blaisdell, clerk, are that guests are well cared for. H. Howard Ray, the photographer, formerly of Boston, has been in business four years. Does first-class workmanship in a prompt manner, and is very popular. Bear him in mind.

A. F. Ouellette, proprietor of the Bon Marche, is showing an elegant line of dry and fancy goods, cloaks, suits and skirts. He has another fine store likewise. E. W. Folsom, graduate optician, and dealer in diamonds, watches and jewelry, has been in business here thirty-five years. The well-established firm of J. Noble & Co., dealers in boots, shoes and harnesses, do a good business—one of the leaders in town. Frank C. Bates is a hustling druggist. L. F. Cote, dealer in dry goods and millinery, is a charming store so as to also sell coats and suits. Somersworth Grain Company made the product of the Husted Milling Company of Buffalo, and sell hay, grain of all kinds—is a prosperous and satisfactory manner. C. Steinfeld deals in good white bread, cake and pastry. His store is neat and inviting.

Across the way in Berwick, Maine, Postmaster L. C. Plaisted, faithful and affable, has been in the employ of Uncle Sam fifteen years. And the old, reliable Stone & Fall Grocery Company sells fancy and standard groceries at popular prices.

Andover, Mass.

T. F. Morrisey & Son, proprietors of the Park Square Boarding and Sale stables, have built up a good patronage in Harvard square, which they control. They have some $50 turn-outs, and twenty-nine good horses, and furnish conveyances for funerals, weddings and receptions, also render efficient public service at the shortest notice. Call and get their rates. This wide-awake firm also makes a specialty of furniture and piano moving, and do expressing and jobbing at short notice.

When it comes to fine footwear J. P. Wells is in the bill. They carry a large stock of boots, shoes and rubbers, and are sole agents for the J. Marcy shoe for ladies, and the Crossett shoe for men. Repairing of shoes receives prompt attention. This enterprising firm is also sole agent for the Rhodes & Moulton laundry. Franklin H. Stacey, Ph. C., makes a feature of compounding drugs at his central located prescription store. Mr. Stacey is also inspector of milk and dairies in this town.

Although Myercough & Buchan's automobile station has been established but three years, patronage is good. Storage, supplies and general dealings and receptions also render efficient public service at the shortest notice. Call and get their rates. This wide-awake firm also makes a specialty of furniture and piano moving, and do expressing and jobbing at short notice.

On account of cleanliness, it is refreshing to procure goods at J. P. West's pure food store, Mr. West makes a specialty of birthday and wedding cakes. H. R. Stone, building contractor, and his engineers and metal workers, established twenty years ago, are doing a big business. The enterprising Valley Brothers, dealers in coals, vegetables, canned goods, teas, coffees, creamery butter, etc., have been in business a great many years, and have built up a good trade.

Allen, Ph. G., is proprietor of the oldest drug store in town, established in 1805, carries a fine stock, and is favorably known as the "prescription druggist." Miss F. M. Porter's new store is open and doing a good business. The stock of dry goods, ladies' and gentlemen's furnishings is most complete and desirable. It it is pure confectionery you want and a choice assortment to select from at fair prices, then by all means visit Mr. Lamprey's popular store. Mrs. L. Smith and A. S. Manning have been partners since 1905. How's that for a good record? They deal in dry goods and groceries.

Dear Old Chelsea.

Chelsea is looking fine. No one would suspect that there had been a big fire there a few years ago. Magnificent structures line the streets. The Y. M. C. A. building attracts attention on account of its solidity and architectural beauty. The new Federal building, costing $225,000, will be ready for occupancy July 1. Business is growing at the postoffice. Superintendent Horace B. Lambert has had a wide experience, (receiving his first appointment in 1879), and is gentlemanly, efficient and accommodating. There was an increase of $70,000 in the sale of stamps last year. Chelsea is well to the front. The Co-operative Bank was organized December 16, 1852. January 1, 1906, the officers were as follows: Horace B. Lambert, president and general manager; H. A. French, treasurer; A. M. Riley, assistant general manager. On January 1, 1910, the company was consolidated with the East Boston Gas Company. Price of gas was reduced to 85 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, May 1, 1911. Price was reduced to 75 cents to use January 1, 1912; amount of gas sold during 1911, 1,303,000,000 cubic feet. The company has about 15,000 consumers. Since Mr. Riley became connected with the Chelsea Gas Light Company in May, 1895, he has steadily advanced. Before the consolidation took place Mr. Riley was re-elected a director and clerk of the Chelsea division, and on March 1, 1911, when the company was reorganized with James L. Richards, president; J. W. Andrews, vice-president; J. G. Perry, assistant treasurer; N. W. Gifford, general manager, Mr. Riley became manager of the commercial department. Mr. Riley is chairman of the membership committee of the Y. M. C. A. and is connected with Chelsea lodge of Elks.

The coal business of J. H. Lewis & Co. dealers in coal and wood, was established twenty-five years ago in Chelsea, and is run today, as a result of square dealing, have many patrons, including prominent business men of Boston. Messrs. Lewis & Co. make a specialty of New River coal which is highly recommended by the Fuel Testing Company.

S. S. Tukey & Co. carry a complete stock of heavy hardware, paints, oils, etc. The business was founded by Samuel S. Tukey in 1882. S. D. Tukey became interested in 1894. After the fire of 1908 one of the first establishments to resume business in the burned district. J. F. Willett is the company's old-time barkeeper.

The L. W. Anthony Co., wholesale and retail dealers in all kinds of furniture, carpets, bedding and crockery, extends to its patrons every accommodation, either for cash or on instalments, entering to the latter trade only reputable people of goods and a square deal generally. This firm, although comparatively new in Chelsea, has done business twenty-two years in Boston.

B. R. Cobb, the livery stable man, came to Chelsea in 1881. He has a well-appointed location since 1888. Boards some forty-five horses, which include most of those owned by local physicians. A couple of fine horses are furnishes hacks for all occasions. Has been in business a month also. Boys grain and hay by the carload. Has horse for sale.

The garage conducted by the Tudor Garage Co., George F. Butterfield and his son, W. J. Butterfield, comprises three floors, and is located at 14 Everett street, elevator to lift cars to any floor. This enterprising firm has been agents for prominent makers of automobiles for years, popular cars, and the Tudor, a first-class master mechanic, is connected with this company.

C. W. Freeman, the enterprising druggist of Broadway, has completed three years and employed fourteen clerks. He is doing a rushing business. The prescription department has the checking system. His soda fountain is up-to-date and complete. The soda fountain is thirty-five feet confectionery line: Apollos, Leguet's, etc. Freeman's is a popular place and is famous!

Boston you wish anything in the real estate line confer with J. A. McCann & Co., dealers in mortgages brokers, auctioneers, etc. They place all kinds of mortgages. At the present time Mr. Corcoran, always open, you will find everything clean, tidy and in order. The firm of Gregory & C. Marshall will treat you right.

The Buckley Plumbing and Heating Company needs a feature of contracting in plumbing, hot water equipment, steam and gas fitting. Mr. Buckley has been with for all sizes of dwellings and business blocks. He is also sole agent for the celebrated Magee and Crawford ranges. Mr. Buckley is a hustler, always on the go.

Chelsea stock of groceries and provisions has been in the store after the fire. Mr. West completed present factory last and doubled floor space. His business is booming. Mr. West is also proprietor of Bowling Hair Company, furnishes human goods, high quality, and sells them at low prices, and makes a specialty of mail orders. Another firm of long standing is that of Anderson Brothers, jewelers and opticians, was established by John Anderson in 1883, the sons took hold in 1870. Carry stock of diamonds, watches, clocks, silverware, etc. Morris & Co., dealers in choice meats, poultry, fish, game, etc., in Chelsea, have been in business twenty years. Bell 1 and 2 Chelsea. Hood Milk Company carries about everything in the way of dairy products. Purchased cows on hand.

The Woonsocket Dairy Co., wholesale and retail dealers in milk, cream and dairy condiments prevail. A specialty is made of ice cream. Mrs. A. A. Pattee is president, and C. E. Ballou, treasurer. Dr. Pattee is also president of the Woonsocket Business Men's Association.

The City Laundry, conducted by George M. Wellos, treasurer, has a most strategic location and the company's laundry carries about everything in the way of washing. Parcels carry on a specialty.

AMATEUR FIVES QUIT TONIGHT

Tonight's games in the Greater Boston A. A. U. basketball league will be the final ones unless action is taken quickly to save the league from its doom. The real cause of the disbandment of the league is that the teams failed to live up to their agreements.

Early this week Chairman Thomas J. Murphy and Secretary Magee of the N. E. A. A. U. turned over the management of the league to the directors of the different teams with the agreement that the N. E. A. A. U. had not severed its connections with the league entirely. The new management set to work right away, and at a meeting held at the Cunningham Gym, East Milton, agreed that each team post a forfeit of $10 for appearance, which would be used to defray the expenses of the home team.

When the time came to post the money only six teams lived up to the rule, according to Chairman Burnett. The St. Josephs, Quincy A. A. and Cunningham Gym of the Senior League, and the same teams of the Junior League, were the only ones to post forfeit money. When the other teams failed to live up to their requirements, Dr. Burnett could see no other way out of its than to drop the league entirely.

The Senior Boston League was organized last November and showed every mark of being a big success. The winning teams of the Senior and Junior Leagues were to be given medals and the winner of the former league was to be sent West to play the best A. A. U. team of the district for the championship.

The disbandment of the league came as a great disappointment to Manager Flynn of the Quincy team and Manager Fitzgerald of the St. Josephs. Both teams showed promising material and were likely foe the trip West which they expected for their hard work.

MAHMOUT IS READY FOR BURNS MATCH

Mahmout, the clever Turkish wrestler, accompanied by Manager Emil Klauk, arrived today from Chicago, to be ready for the Turk's match with Cyclone Burns, the Boston heavyweight. Mahmout surprised all those who had figured him to be a giant, as he is a trim built athletic looking fellow, standing a fraction under six feet and claiming to weigh not over 200 pounds. Mahmout looked very much as though he had been training hard.

Dr. Roller, who replaces Raicevich against Norget in the semi-final, is due to arrive today. Norget is already here for the fray.

Introducing the Pilgrim Recruits

This is the second of a series of stories to be printed daily in the AMERICAN introducing the recruits of the two Boston Major League teams to the fans. By following the series of articles the followers of the national game will be well acquainted with the histories of the men who are to be fired out by the Pilgrims and Red Sox.

JAY KIRKE is not exactly new to the Boston fans, but still he is considered a recruit. He was drafted from the New Orleans team in the Southern Association last season and he reported in time to get into a few of those batting frays during the end of the season. The Boston fans got a fine sample of his abilities on the diamond in those games, and he will have a big following if he gets a regular berth on the Pilgrims this season.

Kirke played second base in the games last season, but he might be seen in another berth next season. Whatever berth he will make in the infield, it will not be new to him, for Jay has played at every position and in each case he has always been at home. Kirke may prove to be the man for third base, and he will be given a good trvout by Manager Kling. He is now try his luck at first base, but it is assured that his batting will send him a regular berth.

Kirke hails from Fitchburgians, New York. He began his ball career in that section. His first professional engagement was with the Kingston team in 1906, and from there he graduated into the New York State League. He displayed great ability the first year he broke into the game with the International League.

Defender pitched, but did not hold him on the bench for a season. He acquired a great amount of knowledge that season, but the Tigers could not use him, and Hughey Jennings let him out to the New Orleans team in the Southern Association. Jennings is intended to bring him back, but was careless and did not have the right string attached to the player and the Pilgrims were enabled to obtain him.

Kirke is a six footer and weighs within a few pounds of 200. He is a remarkably fast fielder and has tremendous batting strength. He played 138 games with New Orleans last season and batted over .300, and in the seventy-nine games that he played for the Boston team he burned up the league at the tune of a total of .286. That was the leading mark of the entire league, and the players and managers who saw him in action believe that he is good for that mark next season. His fielding is also good.

Jay is not a twenty-three years of age. He is a right-handed thrower, but bats left-handed. He is built for the game and can get down to first base with the best of them.

DANNY MANNIX TO PITCH FOR MILLERS

Danny Mannix of Dorchester, who pitched for the Saginaw, South Michigan, League, during the season, has been secured by that club to Minneapolis, in the American Association. Mannix, who is only twenty years old, started in the league last season, winning nineteen out of twenty-five games, and batting for the high average of .286.

LAST CALL FOR BOWLING STARS

Last call. This is closing day for those who wish to enter the Boston AMERICAN'S Championship Bowling Contest. Any entry bearing a postmark later than February 3 will not be considered.

Bowlers need not feel that they have been forgotten if after having mailed their entry to the Bowling Editor they do not receive the official card the following day. So many have delayed sending in their names till the last minute that it may be two or three days before the large force of clerks can go through the list, which will be printed from day to day till all are published.

To the winner of this contest the AMERICAN gives $100 in gold, or if won by an amateur the same amount in suitably inscribed plate, and the victor gains the title of champion candlepin bowler of New England. Other prizes well worth battling for will be announced at a later date. Fill out the entry coupon printed in another column and return the same to the Bowling Editor, Boston AMERICAN, Boston, Mass.

Bowlers must keep in mind that they have only one chance, as after having rolled the five consecutive strings that is all in the running for qualifying men. The highest pinfall will win the day. Twenty strings is the limit, five strings rolled on consecutive nights.

The Editor reserves the right to bowl their five strings over any one of the alleys named in the following official list:

HARVARD PLAYS M'GILL TONIGHT

The Lineup.

HARVARD.		M'GILL.
Palmer, l.	w.	Scott
Dunnell, r.	w.	Wilson
Huntington, r.	c.	Thompson
Cutler, c.	c.	Campbell
Mitchell, c.	c.	Rankin
Wheeler, c.	c.	Rankin
Sortwell, p.	p.	Hicks

Harvard and McGill meet in their annual ice battle at the Arena tonight and all indications point to a record-breaking attendance.

McGill is one of the most popular teams visiting Boston. Harvard supporters are anxious to see the Crimson score a win in order to break the chain of victories registered by McGill this season. McGill has played six games so far and has not been defeated. A Harvard victory tonight, too, would also be a defeat registered by the Crimson at the hands of McGill last year.

The Harvard seven is in the best possible condition for the game, and fast game, Palmer will play left wing in place of Sortwell, due to the latter's absence, being in attendance at the Lawrence strike. Blackall, who was injured in practice Thursday night, has recovered and will play cover-point. All the members of the team have a feeling of confidence that they can win.

The McGill seven and substitutes arrived in Boston today. Scott, the right wing of McGill, who is the most dangerous player, will be in the lineup, also Rankin, the six-foot centerpoint.

Basketball Notes

Manager Lind of the Antler A. C. is desirous of matching his team against fast 100-pound fives throughout the State. Games are especially desired with the Revere High School quintet and the Winchester High School second. Manager F. D. Lind, No. 76 Custer street, Winthrop.

The "Boston 1915 Five" would like to arrange games with fast 110-pound teams of Greater Boston. Games especially wanted with the Progress Five second and the Father Matthews second. Manager Frederick Smith, No. 18 Williams street, Roxbury.

The Medford White Sox would like to meet any 110 pound team in the State away from home. Half expenses for five or more expected. Manager John Morris, No. 81 Greenleaf avenue, Medford.

The Ardmore A. C. of South Boston is still waiting to hear from the Somerville Boys' Club, Malden Boys' Club, East Boston Gym, Crescent Five, and the Ascended Five. Games also wanted with any fast 100-105 pound teams in the State. Address, Ardmore Club, No. 117 Silver street, South Boston.

Next Monday night at the Roxbury Y. M. C. A., the Monitor A. C. of Cambridge will play the Roxbury Midgets. The lineup of the Monitor team will be as follows: Dailey and Murphy, forwards; Skelley, center; Sweeney and Barry, backs.

The Princeton A. A. of Roxbury is out with a challenge to any 120-pound team in the State. This team has lost but three games in fifteen this season, and would like to hear from the Foxboro second and Willingtons of Roxbury. Manager Alden Merrigomeau, No. 2451 Washington street, Roxbury.

The East Side Fraternity of Malden, which has lost but one game in thirteen this season, is out with a sweeping challenge to fast 120-125-pound teams. Hogan and Hall are holding down the back field in fine fashion, while Flanagan and Chisholm are playing the forward positions, and Chappenberg makes a good man at center. Manager Daniel Chisholm, No. 108 Ferry street, Malden.

GARDNER MEETS DILLON TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

The dreamy fight "fans" of Philadelphia should witness a slashing bout when Jimmy Gardner of Lowell and Jack Dillon of Indianaola give battle tonight. Of course, many of the lawabiding citizens of the Quaker City would much rather see "Home Run" Baker send the horsehide sailing over the right field wall at Shibe Park than to see Gardner and Dillon in action, but as the opening of the baseball season is still over two months off the Philadelphia sports will have to be content with witnessing a little game of fisticuffs.

Gardner has not taken part in a bout since last April. His last fight was against this same Dillon and took place in Pittsburg. Jimmy has been passing away the time tending to his business affairs at Lowell and doing a little refereeing on the side.

Gardner Great Boxer.

The present crop of middleweights haven't anything on the Spindle City plug, during his absence from the ring. Gardner took on quite a lot of extra weight, but he is now in good condition. He has been doing road work and working out in the gymnasium for the past month.

Gardner is one of the cleverest men in the ring to-day. He has made some of the greatest experts in the game look like novices. Boston "fans" have not yet forgotten what Gardner did to Frank Klaus at the Armory this in November, 1910. The Pittsburg "bearcat" came to Boston fifty odd pounds record as a knockerout and ruled a big favorite over Jimmy. But the fistiguch was of little avail against Gardner, the Lowell man winning the decision after twelve rounds of fighting.

Gardner is tackling a pretty tough customer in Dillon. The Indianapolis middleweight is now considered one of the leading men of his weight in the world. He has been doing some sensational work in the squared circle during the past six months.

Beat Leo Houck.

He recently shaded Frank Klaus in a six-round bout at Pittsburg, while he made Leo Houck quit in eight rounds at Indianapolis on New Year's day. Dillon fought Billy Berger at Youngstown, Ohio, last Monday night and finished the best of the mixing.

Dillon is a slambang sort of boxer, Gardner, however, has proven time and again that he does his best work against the rushers.

Johnny Coulon is a 2 to 1 favorite over Frankie Conley in the twenty-round bout which takes place before the Pacific Athletic Club in Vernon today. Dispatches from the coast say that the betting is heavy and that quite a few who have the nerve to put a flier on Conley.

This is a pretty contested, as there is a long existing feeling between the two boys. It will be remembered that Conley claimed the bantamweight championship when he defeated Monte Attell in a forty-two-round fight at Frisco on the afternoon of February 22, 1910. When Frankie returned to Chicago, he found Coulon parading as the bantamweight title holder. The two boys were matched to meet at New Orleans last February and Coulon won on points. Failing to reverse the tables in today's meeting.

Extra! Extra! Extra! Bob Lee, the only and original "cheese" champion, is often referred to as the diving Venus. Tonight, tonight, the most famous Robert is billed to try conclusions with Sailor White—how'd you like to—eh? Gotham this evening. Bob is champion of all cheese, but he seems to pick out soft spots. Lee is confident of victory this evening. "I believe me, he will fight like a demon outfit—and here the key to the mystery—this White person has been a gentle wanderer in the ring. I think the pride of all Worcester" will then be the pride of Lee at home, wonder whether the chickens have been fed, then look toward the Lee canvas, pick out a soft spot and then take a long sleep while the cruel referee tolls off the fatal count.

Now that the charter of the American A. C. has been revoked Boston is without a boxing club. It has been quite a while since we had any real fistic mixing, but Mlah Murray is still looking for new quarters for the Armory Club and tells me that he may be able to give out some good news inside of a few weeks.

Paddy Callahan writes from Brooklyn that he has been matched to meet Willie Jones at Brooklyn on February 12. Paddy is one of the cleverest boxers that Old Custer has quite a reputation, and if Callahan can beat he will be in demand, very difficult to get all the matches he desires.

CANDLEPIN MEN IN BIG MEET

"Splash" Callahan, manager of the Buick Bowling Alleys of Lynn, has arranged a series of bowling matches between some of the best candlepin rollers in New England that should interest every follower of the "thin pin" game.

The matches will be held on three successive Monday nights, February 5, 12 and 19, at the Buick Alleys, and will be rolled for a purse put up by Callahan and a percentage of the gate receipts. It is also expected that the bowlers themselves will put up some money on the side, but this has not yet been decided upon.

"Manager Callahan's first offering will be held on next Monday night, John Christopher of Revere meeting Archie Walsh of East Boston and Paul Poehler of Portsmouth, N. H., rolling against Harry Cole of Lynn.

On the following Monday night the bowlers will switch around, Christopher meeting Cole and Poehler rolling against Walsh, while the same method will be applied the next Monday night, Christopher tackling Poehler and Walsh rolling against Cole.

The first match will start at 7:30 sharp, being closely followed by the other two matches, which should start at about 9 o'clock. Everything will be over at 10:30, giving the out-of-town fans ample time to get their trains.

"Splash" has had this card in view for some time, and it was not until after he had arranged for the purse that he got the contestants to agree. Cole, Christopher, Walsh and Poehler are four of the best wielders of the candlepins in New England and are sure to give the fans a run for their money.

BIG LINER FOR OLYMPIC STARS

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Colonel Robert H. Thompson, president of the American Olympic Committee, has made public the fact that he will charter an ocean liner to take the members of the American Olympic team to Stockholm for the Olympic games, to be held there next June. After inspecting a number of vessels that the committee would be suitable for the cruise, Colonel Thompson has now decided that the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, flagship of the Finland will be best. A. H. Curtis, speaking for the colonel, said that the Oceanic would probably be the vessel, as the Hamburg-American people were willing to make arrangements whereby the athletes and their friends would be able to start and finish the trip. "It is planned to permit 350 guests, both men and women, to accompany us," he said, "and the vessel would leave New York the first week in June for Stockholm the liner would be used as a floating hotel.

PLANS UNDER WAY TO FORM RACE CIRCUIT

TAUNTON, Feb. 3.—The Taunton Gentlemen's Driving Club has made an offer to Walter S. Smith, owner of the Bristol County Fair Grounds, for the purchase of the race track, grandstand and a portion of the grounds. The driving club plans to form a racing circuit, with cities from Brockton, Fall River, New Bedford and Attleboro. It would be known as the Quequechery Circuit, and in connection with the Fall River event there would be an agricultural fair, conducted under the auspices of the grange of southeastern Massachusetts. It is said that the offer amounted to $15,000.

NEW RULES FOR FOOTBALL GAME

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Having devoted one entire day to general discussion of proposed changes in the rules governing football, the intercollegiate rules committe settled down to work today for their final session with the list of revisions boiled down to the following:

Change the distance for downs from 10 yards to 8 yards outside the 25-yard mark and to 5 yards within that mark.

Abolish the on-side kick.

Retain the forward pass but to make it possible to make a touchdown by it.

Change the wording of rules where two interpretations have been possible in the past.

Walter Camp, leader of the progressive faction, declared today that all was harmony in the meeting and that the committeemen had reached an understanding which precluded the possibility of bitter feeling.

It was admitted that there would be no radical changes. The most radical reform advocated is that put forward by Dr. Cochems of Wisconsin University, who recommended that all offensive limitations be done away with. This proposition received scant attention.

In addition to the members of the committee a number of prominent football men were in town in connection with the meeting. Among these were Captain Howe of the Yale eleven last year, Gorge Adee of Yale, Carl Flanders of Yale and Addison Kelly of Princeton.

THIS IS GREAT! I'LL LEAP YEAR, MARRY ME CLAUDE, I LOVE YOU
ROSAMOND WILL NEVER BELIEVE ME WHEN I TELL HER THAT I KNOW MUCH MORE THAN TRIPOLI WOMEN BEFORE THE DESMOND'S WORK
CLAUDE HAS BE-CEIVED ME! I'LL MAKE HIM JEALOUS BY MAKING LOVE TO THE VILLAIN, DESMOND — HERE HE COMES! I LOVE ONLY CLAUDE
ROSAMOND I'LL BE OUT SOON AND THEN I'LL
LADY ASTORBILT'S MOTOR CAR HAS COME FOR ROSAMOND
I HAVE ESCAPED THE LOVE OF WOMEN! NOW TO SEE THE DESMOND IS STILL IN PRISON
CLAUDE! I HAVE MADE AN HIDEOUS PLOT FOR CAPTURE.
WHY THAT'S MY ROSAMOND
THAT WOMAN IS DESMONDS SWEETHEART! SHE IS A DANGER TO YOU!
OH! CLAUDE I'LL BE GLAD TO BELIEVE HIM
TAKE THAT, YOU VILLAIN! NOT THE ONLY ONE, I'M SURE!
FOOL THAT BUNK HERO CAUGHT YOU!
HOW TO WIRE THE KEY, AND MAKE A CONNECTION TO RUN THE MOTOR
REMEMBER TO SECRET KEY UNDER YOU RUG
ROSAMOND, YOU ARE IN MY POWER AGAIN! AND YOU MUST BE MY WIFE IN SPITE OF ALL UNHAND ME, YOU CUR! I HATE YOU
WOE IS ME
HOORAY

It is sad since of things for Claude, having been lured off that 1912 is a leap year, a horde of Tripolitan representatives of the fair sex pursues the handsome Claude Grimwade with proposals of marriage. With some slight knowledge of woman's ways, Claude, as he sprints along, knows that even Rosamond will suspect him.

In the meantime, Rosamond, who has witnessed the pursuit of Claude by the beauties of Tripoli, has resolved to make the hero jealous by presenting a bouquet to the imprisoned Desmond. That woman-hating villain, who proudly informs one Ardrel is naturally overjoyed to see Rosamond, and the Oriental Sherlock Holmes is that turnkey, who, with unusual watchful turnkey is at once convinced and he looks for Claude to say: "Astounding that Rosamond is the villain's accomplice, ha!" Your deductions are marvelous!"

As Claude dashes up to the prison steps to make sure that the scoundrel Desmond is still safely behind the bars, he is met by the turnkey, who proudly informs one whom he captured all by his lonesome. "A right shoots out and connects with the turnkey's nose, or boke, as it is known in sporting circles. The keys drop and Desmond reaches for them.

Proudly the turnkey leads Claude to the adjoining cells in which he has locked up Desmond, the international crook, and Rosamond, the beautiful heroine. Proudly the turnkey points out Rosamond, this to Claude, her lover, and the traces in history.

It is 2 watch, even for the excellent temper of our hero. His Rosamond to be locked up, and on the charge of being an accomplice of Desmond's! Claude's trusty fist does not and connects with the hero's nose, or boke, as it is known in sporting circles. The keys drop and Desmond reaches for them.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "and this proves it." The crook has opened the cell doors, and while Claude and the turnkey are holding a peace banquet he leaves with Rosamond. This shows us how foolish it is to fight, unless it's absolutely necessary. For details of the chase see Monday's pictures.

The Hungry Stenographer

By WINIFRED BLACK

DEAR MISS BLACK:

I read your articles with much interest and noticed recently that you condemn the stenographer. Now you know probably secure in your position, but I wonder if you realize that perhaps this same stenographer has no other alternative.

I have not worked in four months, and why? Why, because I'm not strong, cannot do any heavy work, and every vacant position I have applied for has had a man attached to it.

I myself will in future give the woman the benefit of the doubt every time, and why? Because I realize what they are struggling against and I could find it in my heart to hate you for condemning something you know nothing of. A READER.

CONDEMNING something I know nothing of? Is that it, little girl? All because I said no woman who came willingly between a man and his wife was a woman to be admired or trusted even if she did happen to be the man's stenographer?

Well, well, how interesting it is to see the different points of view, to be sure.

Now I know stenographers, hundreds of them, and every one of them good girls, honest girls, self-respecting girls.

I wonder how they would like your inference that the only way to make success in business is to sell yourself for ten or twelve dollars a week and work hard to earn the money besides? I'm afraid they'd say that the thing that sells you is that you are incompetent, not perhaps faithful so, you may be too weak or too ill or too ignorant to be a good stenographer, but still incompetent. And of course when a girl is incompetent she has to make the best of a very bad bargain.

Hungry are you, and desperate? Poor girl, I wish I knew where you were. I'd like to spend the day with you right now.

The first thing I'd do would be to have a good substantial luncheon, then we'd see about a decent room somewhere and then we'd talk it over, the foolish cross-eyed way you have of looking at life.

Get on in business by being a silly little thing for sale to the highest bidder? Not in honest business, my dear, not in honest business.

These men you've seen aren't representative of a class, they're just a sort of parasite on the real business community. There isn't much work to do in their offices or they would want a capable stenographer and one who was there to work, not to flirt.

Forget them, honey, forget them. Every woman with her way to make in the world meets these absurd creatures once in a while, yes absurd they are really nothing but very bad jokes. Don't laugh with them, laugh at them, that will soon bring them to their senses.

And whisper, study, work. How many words can you take in a minute? Can you spell? Did you ever hear of the President of the United States? Who? Rockefeller, and how do you spell him? Are you good humored, tidy, obliging, quick, industrious? Do you like to work?

Those are the important things for you to think of, not what sort of men you have to work for.

You'll get plenty of work when you are competent to do it, and if the man who gives it to you is a doddering old fool, or a feather-headed young one, tell him quite calmly that you have no time for nonsense, smile in friendly fashion, and go on with your work. He'll be the best friend you ever had, see if he isn't.

There's no time in modern business life for offended dignity, no time for air and graces, no time for even hurt feelings and wounded pride. There's just time for work and smiling and seeing the world as it is, not as you'd like to think it, a huge hustling ground, with all the men on earth chasing poor little timid you.

Don't run so hard, sister, they'll soon stop trying to catch you if you just stand still and let them run by. Try it and see.

TRUE SUCCESS AT LAST

THE JOY OF LIVING IS THE HERITAGE OF THE LEAN. I WAS FAT—AND I KNOW.

My friends were charitable, and they called it "obesity"; others referred to me as being STOUT. As I know, it was just plain, bulky fat. I was miserable—yes, lots, are equally miserable if you are bulky.

To reduce your weight, you must find the cause, you must get at the very reason.

I FOUND THE CAUSE—THE REST WAS EASY.

Being I succeeded, I tried everything within reason and some things beyond reason.

It was foolishness, of course.

All I had to do was to remove the cause, and cause under nature's law, by my simple method, physical things, nothing to eat or drink, no exercise, no "starving" diet, no need of friends to see or work. And you know that I can do the same for you. In the privacy of your own home, without accident or risk to the body, but a simple home treatment, I have found the right "key" to the right door, and I hold in the sunshine of my hand the key with ease. I hold it in the form of "Weight Reduction Without Drugs," which I am going to send absolutely free to everybody.

Nearly five pounds weekly is necessary in my office to assist me to carry on my enormous business, the comfort of my friends and myself, and the wonderful health of this great drugless treatment makes it in demand in every part of the world.

If you are interested in your own happiness and health and vitality, you will permit me to tell you about my free book, "Weight Reduction Without Drugs."

I have printed a book for you, entitled, "Weight Reduction Without Drugs." Think! I am giving away without charge, except to you, so that you may personally realize what I can do for you, one thousandth useless words. Suffice to say, almost at once, without harmful exercise or starvation diets, drugs or medicines.

Send for my book, "Weight Reduction Without Drugs." It is free for the asking, and I will be glad to send it to you, postage prepaid, on you to simply send me your name and address.

I have found that the best way to know how is to give it. Sincerely your Friend,

The Prince and the Plutocrat; or, The Grand Babylon Hotel
Arnold Bennett's Great Mystery Story

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT
By Arnold Bennett

Copyright, The Press Publishing Company.

"YOUR HIGHNESS," the man who wishes to probe a mystery to its roots never uses the word "impossible." But I will say this for Mr. Limmock. I think he repeated, and I think that it was because he repeated that he—er—died so suddenly, and that his body was spirited away."

"Why has no one told me these things before?" Aribert exclaimed.

Princes seldom hear the truth," she said.

He was astonished at her coolness, her firmness of assertion, her air of complete acquaintance with the world.

"Miss Racksole," he said, "if you will permit me to say it, I have never in my life met a woman like you. May I rely on your sympathy, your support?"

"My support, Prince? But how?"

"I do not know," he replied, "but you could help me if you would. A woman, when she has brains, always has more brains than a man."

"Ah!" she said mournfully, "I have no brains, but I believe I can help you."

What prompted her to make that assertion she could not have explained, even to herself.

"Count Us Friends."

But she made it, and she had a suspicion, a prescience, that it would be justified, though by what means, through what good fortune, was still a mystery to her.

"Go to Berlin," she said; "I see that you must do that. You have no alternative. As for the rest, we will see. Something will occur. I shall be here. My father will be here. You must count us as your friends."

He kissed her hand when he left, and afterward, when she was alone, she kissed the spot his lips had touched, again and again.

Now, thinking the matter over in the calmness of solitude, all seemed strange, unreal, uncertain to her.

Were conspiracies actually possible nowadays? Did queer things actually happen in Europe? And did they actually happen in London hotels?

She dined with her father that night. "I hear Prince Aribert has left," said Theodore Racksole.

"Yes," she assented.

She said not a word about their interview.

The Baroness' Arrival and Departure

TO the following morning just before lunch, a lady, accompanied by a maid and a considerable quantity of luggage, arrived at the Grand Babylon Hotel.

She saw a plump little old lady, with white hair and an old-fashioned bonnet, and she had a quiet, simple smile of surprise at everything in general. Nevertheless she gave the impression of belonging to some aristocracy, though not the English aristocracy.

Her tone to her maid, whom she addressed in broken English—the girl being apparently English—was distinctly insolent with the calm, unconscious insolence peculiar to a certain type of continental nobility.

The name on the lady's card ran thus: "Baroness Zerlinski." She desired rooms on the third floor.

It happened that Nella was in the bureau.

"On the third floor, madam?" questioned Nella in her best clerkly manner.

"I did say on the third floor," said the plump little old lady.

"We have accommodation on the second floor."

"I wish to be high up, out of the dust and in the light," explained the Baroness.

"We have no suites on the third floor, madam."

"Never mind, no matter! Have you not two rooms that communicate?"

Nella consulted her books rather awkwardly.

"Numbers 122 and 123 communicate," she said.

"Oh, is it 121 and 122?" the little old lady remarked quickly, and then bit her lip.

"I beg your pardon—I should have said 121 and 122."

Thought It Strange

At that moment Nella regarded the Baroness' correction of her figures as a curious chance, but afterward, when the Baroness had ascended in the lift, the thing struck her as somewhat strange.

Perhaps the Baroness Zerlinski had stayed at the hotel before. For the sake of convenience, an index of guests was kept and this index extended back thirty years.

Nella examined it, but it did not contain the name of Zerlinski. Then it was that Nella began to imagine what had swiftly crossed her mind when first the Baroness presented herself at the bureau, that the features of the baroness were remotely familiar to her.

She thought not that she had seen the old lady's face before, but that she had seen somewhere, sometime, a face of a similar cast.

It occurred to Nella to look at the "Almanach de Gotha"—that record of all the names of Continental blue blood; but the "Almanach de Gotha" has no reference to the barony of Zerlinski.

Nella inquired where the Baroness meant to take lunch, and was informed that a table had been reserved for her in the dining room. She at once decided to lunch there herself.

Understanding Smokerettes

By MARIE CORTHOPE

A BIDDING essayist, hard put for a theme, tries to inquire "Do Our Dramatists Understand Women?" and then proceeds to establish to his own satisfaction that they do not by one act or whatever was in his mind and which he failed to convey to his readers.

Of course, it is one of the stock themes, and novelists or poets or plumbers could have been substituted for dramatists without particular let or hindrance to the essayist's efforts. It is the "Eternal Feminine," the "Mystery of the Ages," the same to-day, yesterday and to-morrow, until the day of the real emancipation of women from the stupid thralldom of living up to a tradition arrives.

Why, even the poor things themselves, through years of preaching and drilling, have come to believe that they are something strange and apart from the rest of creation, and even when they write about one another, they try to "understand" and does not give you credit for understanding yourself. If necessary, become smokerettes, just like many of your sex have turned suffragettes in order to pour rights in fierce coods of cigarette smoke and under the banner of the coupon and the cork tip, get on to victory!

Understand you? Why, they haven't even been introduced!

WHY THINGS WILL NEVER BE CHEAPER.

Everybody feels the burden of the present high prices. The real reason why the prices are so high and still remain so are told in

SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

A Dilemma

"WHY did you jilt that man who wanted to marry you?"

"Because," replied the prima donna, "I couldn't make up my mind whether he was in love with me or merely wanted to hear me sing for nothing."

The Most Uniformed Man in the World

AMONG the many peculiar distinctions which might be claimed by the German Emperor, even among kings, is the possession of the largest number of uniforms any one being has ever worn.

In variety and splendor the Kaiser's wardrobe of ceremony far eclipses that of even King George, who holds the right to wear just over a hundred military and naval uniforms. In the Emperor's suite of rooms, lined with cupboards and stacked with wardrobes, are nearly 2500 complete uniforms. A large proportion of these consist of regimentals of the German Army, but the rest are made up of British, Italian, Spanish, Greek, Dutch, Swedish, Russian and Turkish trappings. Indeed, the only European army in which the Emperor is not a Colonel is that of France, but the reason for this omission is not that His Imperial Majesty is unable to appear in Republican garb, for he frequently wears the neat uniform of the Swiss Guards, and still retains his Portuguese regiments under the Republic.

His Narrow Sash

The Kaiser is most exacting as regards the preservation of this huge collection of costly uniforms, which has to be kept absolutely up-to-date in respect of the constant changes which are made in cut and arrangements of details. If some foreign war office decides that a button must be added or two must go, these modifications affect his whole army on a coat, should the Emperor have occasion to wear it.

It is recorded that the Kaiser once appeared at a luncheon given by a regiment of a small principality, dressed in the full form of its honorary colonel. The Kaiser had hardly taken his place at the table among his "brother officers" before his eagle eye detected that the sash he wore across his shoulders was a shade narrower than the sashes he saw around him. No comment was made at the time by the Imperial guest, but subsequently a black day for the responsible official resulted in the discovery that his overanxious regard for duty had led him to anticipate the working of a new order for narrower sashes which had not yet been carried out on the uniforms of the regiment itself.

As may be imagined, the task of keeping this immense outfit in spotless condition and ever-ready trim is a source of constant worry and considerable labor. The invasion of a single moth into the Imperial wardrobe rooms is as much dreaded by the custodians of the Kaiser's uniforms as the discovery of a bomb in the Imperial palace by His Majesty's bodyguard. A small army of official tailors and servants is continually at work, ironing, brushing and polishing.

Twenty Tin Trunks

When the German Emperor travels on a visit he often accompanied by over twenty tin trunks containing a selection of uniforms which may be required. And with this section of the Imperial luggage go a specially chosen staff of valets, each of whom is responsible for some particular item of dress. Helmets, cocked hats and "undress" caps are one man's care; another devotes himself to the good order of swords, belts and trappings, while a third is an expert in the art of preserving and polishing the Kaiser's boots.

Lost!

IT was a wet day, and the car was nearly full, when a very small man entered.

As he was both short in stature and narrow in beam, he managed to squeeze himself on to the seat, occupying the last available space.

At the next stop there entered a very large and handsome lady. Without fuss she caught hold of the strap in front of the small man.

But if his height was little, his chivalry was great.

"Take my seat, madam!" he cried, struggling to his feet.

"Thank you very much," replied the lady, pleasantly; then a little smile stole over her face as she eyed the full seat. "But—er—where did you get up from?"

Up-to-Date Jokes

"Pa, never made a sound when your father spanked you just now," said a boy to his chum.

"No," was the reply. "Father says it hurts him worse than it does me, and if that's so he can do his own hollering!"

"Does Mrs. Cumrox go to church to see what other women wear?"

"No," replied Mr. Cumrox. "We are now sufficiently prosperous for her to go in order to let other women see what she wears."

"Quills has had a story accepted at last," remarked a journalist to a colleague.

"Surely not," was the rejoinder.

"Yes. He went home at 2 o'clock this morning with an awful yarn, and his wife believed it."

She—You must not expect their wives to run their homes on practically nothing. How forget that no one can make bricks without straw.

He—My wife does—out of flour.

Miss Singer—Did my voice fill the drawing room?

Mr. Stinger—No; it filled the conservatory and garden every one went out there.

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair.

It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCK MARKET RANGES HIGHER

STATE STREET, Feb. 3.—It was a rather dull Saturday on stock markets, Boston closing dull after a session of moderate activity which began with copper prices a little firmer.

In the local market at the close, Trinity sold at 5⅜, up ⅛; North Butte, at 26, up 1 point; Superior Boston, 4 7-16, on 1-16; Calumet & Arizona, 58⅝, up ⅛; Boston Corbin, 6⅝, up ⅛; Osceola, 107, up 2 points; Wyandot, 2⅜, up ⅛. There were fractional declines in Nevada Consolidated, Bay Consolidated and Isle Royale, while Indiana and Nipissing were unchanged.

Trading on the Boston Curb was moderate and within narrow margins. There was flurry in United Verde Ex, that put it up to 50, but it ceased to fit at the close. Bingham Mines was active around 3½, while Humboldt was weak off 11 cents to 69.

Reading and Lehigh Valley Lower.

Reading was the market feature at the opening in New York, selling with a net loss of ¾ compared with yesterday's closing. Lehigh Valley was weak, closing two points lower. United States Rubber and Steel were firm. The bears were not so active. On the whole the market was dull and uninteresting.

The total of shares sold was 208,058. The market closed steady. It was a better day for prices than yesterday. The average closing price of active leading stocks today was 121⅞, or 1-16 higher than yesterday.

Compared with yesterday's final prices, today's last sales were as follows: Canadian Pacific at 230, up 1⅜; Erie at 30⅜, up ⅜; Erie 1st Pfd, at 50⅜, up ¼; Interborough-Metropolitan at 17⅝, off ⅛; Lehigh Valley, 156½, off ½.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Three electric railway and lighting companies in Maine, capitalized for $16,320,000 and embracing a trolley system of 145 miles, have been acquired by a syndicate including F. W. Clark & Co. of Philadelphia, J. & W. Seligman & Co. and A. B. Leach & Co. of New York. The properties, which are the Portland Railway Company, the Lewiston, Augusta & Waterville Street Railway Company and the Portland Electric Company, are to be consolidated into a new corporation. It is stated that none of the existing $1,839,000 of bonds on the properties will be disturbed. The banking syndicate which obtained control proposes to enlarge both the electric lighting and railway field, covered by these companies.

The export business of the Jones & Laughlin Company, one of the biggest independent steel manufacturing concerns, is to be put in the hands of a separate company, as the United States Steel Corporation has done. The export enterprise will be known as the Jones & Laughlin Steel Products Company, and a charter will be applied for in Pennsylvania on February 26. The parent company will start its fourth new open hearth steel furnace at Aliquippa, Penn., within a few days and will produce there about 1,000 tons of steel ingots.

During January the rail orders placed in this country totalled, it is estimated, about 445,000 tons, and yesterday the Lackawanna Valley gave an additional order for 10,000. The known aggregate of rails placed since October 1 is 1,000,000 tons. There will be 2,500,000 in gold coin sent to Costa Rica. There is so much idle money here that American bankers have been making concessions to get foreigners to borrow funds in the United States. The sterling rate has not reached the exportation point and profit in the shipment of $5,000,000 in gold bars to Paris has not been shown.

Copper producers say there is still a dearth of orders from domestic and foreign buyers, notwithstanding the fact that the metal is being quoted at 17 cents. Yesterday's output of the Anaconda, Utah Copper and Nevada Consolidated at 14½ cents, Bay Consolidated at 14½ cash, Rio Tinto 14⅝ cents.

CASTS DOUBT ON MORGAN'S NAME

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—J. Pierpont Morgan's name is not necessarily a patent of worth to an organization, according to the opinion expressed today by H. Ollin Young, representative from Michigan and member of the Stanley Steel Committee. When John A. Fitch, of the Russell Sage Survey, resumed his testimony, Representative Young questioned him concerning the officials of the magazine for which Fitch works. Chairman Stanley asked: "Who is the treasurer?"

"J. P. Morgan is the treasurer of the organization which publishes it."

"Well, that's all right," said Stanley.

"Oh, not necessarily," interposed Young. Fitch then discussed the conditions under which employes of the steel mills live. He said:

"The higher classes of skilled labor, such as rollers and heaters, live very well on wages ranging from $ 5to $8 per day. I found them discontented, however, be-cause they had so little time from their labor to enjoy their families and pleasures such as machinery.

"The men who make 17½ cents an hour live in dwelling houses where every room is as full of beds as it can be, seven to a room. Many of the rooms in the rooms are usually in wretched condition. The beds are filthy. Two men sleep in each bed, one on an old mattress and a pile of ragged quilts."

"I object to me that this is a remote question more in the nature of cost of living matter," interposed Reed.

Representative Young: "Do you know what these men pay for such accommodations?"

Attorney Reed—"About 10 cents a day. That includes everything except supper."

"OVER THE ANDES," BY BURTON HOLMES

"Over the Andes," a delightful trip from Argentina to Chile, was the subject of the Burton Holmes travelogue at Tremont Temple. The travelogue was in two parts, the first a journey across the pampas or valley at the foothills of the Andes, where are seen vast herds of cattle and sheep, then a short stop at Mendoza, there taking a glimpse of some of the vineyards and some of the homes of those who have been successful in exporting fortunes from the grape. Leaving Mendoza one boards the transandean railway and climbs to a height of 11,000 feet, where the highest railway station on Argentina's side of the new tunnel. Leaving the train the traveler mounts on mule back to the Christ monument on the international boundary, a climb of 2,000 feet.

IN COURT TO GUARD HIS WATER SUPPLY

Alphonse Dubois has asked the Suffolk County Superior Court to enjoin Kalmin Bernstein from shutting off the water in the Dubois apartments, No. 118 Court street. He charges the water has been shut off several times from Saturday night until Monday morning.

Dubois has a barber shop and lives on the second floor. Bernstein is proprietor of a jewelry store on the street floor and the pipes go through his store.

LINEHAN DUE IN BOSTON TODAY

Ex-Senator Frank J. Linehan, in the custody of Police Inspectors Morris Wolf and Joseph Loughlin, is expected to arrive here today. He is speeding to this city on a fast train, which left New Orleans at 8 o'clock Thursday night. The train is due in New York at about 12 o'clock today, and Chief Inspector Dubois is of the opinion that unless the train is delayed Linehan will be at Police Headquarters late this afternoon.

MANY ENTERING BOY CONTEST

If you were starting in all over again, and had your own say about it, which would you rather be, a country boy or a city boy?

Of course, nothing is said about being a country girl or a city girl, because no one would want to be a girl anyway, if they could help it.

The AMERICAN is holding a contest on this subject, suggested by Edgar Selwyn's comedy, "The Country Boy," now running at the Park Theatre.

Winners for the second week in the Country Boy contest will be announced in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN. The first prize is $10 in gold. The second prize gives the winner the choice of a box seat for the Park Theatre, either next Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday evenings. The third prize winner will have the choice of two seats for any one of the same performances.

Writers are questioned about not running over 150 words. Write only on one side of the paper. Sign your name and full address. It is a good idea to illustrate your answer with an actual example taken from life, which has influenced your decision.

There will be a series of weekly prizes, with grand prizes at the end of the contest. There are four sets of prizes, and only one set for each of the four weeks of the contest. The prizes are as follows, in addition to the theatre boxes and seats.

The grand prizes are: First, $20 in gold; second, $10 in gold; third, $5 in gold; fourth, box (six seats) for "The Country Boy."

Address letters to Country Boy Editor, Boston American, Hanover.

Charles M. Schwab An Example.

Editor AMERICAN:

The example and advice of one whose life is so grand tells the young man from the country conclusively that he must always be rely on himself, then if he is a success it is due to his own efforts. It is a very safe plan to make one's work a mission to the employer, even if it takes overtime; do not worry about the hours. Be sure you are willing to do you follow the Golden Rule. Hard and are you doing your best? Be well informed, as the best informed, most conscientious and courageous men are likely to be advanced. Be master of your work and the better you begin to start as early as possible, read and study much. All lies with the boy himself. He must be wide-awake and up to date. The contest there is surely likely to possess these requisites and learn the lessons from which we can gain. Charles M. Schwab, village of Loretto, Pa., later President of the Steel Trust.

HARRIE T. DUNBAR.
No. 81 Thorndike st., Brookline.

Advantage of Physical Vigor.

Editor AMERICAN:

The country boy has, as a rule, the advantage of physical vigor, which is indispensable to successful business. Then, to be taught that he must be self-reliant by nothing himself more than by practice. He is the training that will acquire sound habits. Hard work (but not overwork), economy and honesty are necessary to do his best with what comes to his hand, and these supreme qualities will serve him it better, will pave a path to success. Lasting success can not be attained by any one lots of mind work. An earnest, unaddicted hardworking boy from the country, has a splendid opportunity of becoming successful. Howard Sage gain life as a grocery clerk in a country store.

PERCY BARTLETT.
No. 19 Searle avenue, Whitman.

Cites President Garfield.

Editor AMERICAN:

The great natural opportunity for success in life lies at the feet of the country boy. Truthfulness, honesty, courteousness, courage are his. Prepared for work, ships, with few pleasures or advantages, he sees at every turning the way to further his advancement. Thus prepared, when seventy-one the city boy is not likely to fill with when placed beside his neighbor, the city boy has had the best of it. It is true, but lacks the qualities that environment has given the country boy. The encouragement is a word not easily understood by him, for he knows not what it is. In his mind "Win" is blazoned in bright letters.

Example after example will appear to you of the great success of the country boy when you pick up either newspapers or biographies. But one of the best is that of President Garfield, whose career reads "From Log Cabin to White House."

An interesting subject, one that is attracting widespread attention on this continent, and one which is of great importance to us all, is the question of the conservation of our forest lands, and the great project now being carried on by the government in the irrigation and reclamation of arid lands.

Once in a while we read of what the government is doing toward reclaiming vast territories of land which have never been worth anything commercially to us, but which we never get any more than a brief, very brief, outline of what is going on in this respect.

In the New Census Atlas of the World, pictorial and descriptive, one of the three prize books offered to its readers by the AMERICAN, the history of this great undertaking by the United States government is all told in a concise and instructive manner. There is also a map of each showing what has already been done and what is planned to be done in reclaiming every inch of land in this country fertile and commercially profitable.

TRIPLE MURDER IN WISCONSIN HOME

APPLETON, Wis., Feb. 3.—A triple murder and suicide was reported to District Attorney F. J. Rooney when the bodies of Joseph Mallahn, 48 years old, and his family, were found at the farm home of Lewis Mallahn, 81 years old, three miles from here. According to neighbors, William Mallahn had recently been acting strangely and the supposition is that he murdered his relatives and then killed himself.

Monopolistic Gagging of the Press Means the Poisoning of the Wells of American Public Opinion

The hundreds of thousands who read this newspaper day by day, and who are each day steadily adding to their numbers will have read with amazement the exposure of press-gagging which the AMERICAN made on the first page of yesterday's editions.

It is an exposure which should blanch the cheek of every thoughtful citizen who reads it. Every paragraph, every line of the shameful story has full material to make men pause.

This story of the Shoe Trust and its controlled chain of newspapers is the opening of a chapter whose ending no man can foresee.

It is the unveiling, rather the unmasking, of a powerful conspiracy to muzzle the American press, to poison the well springs of American public opinion.

From the dawn of this Republic onward, to this very hour, the free, untrammelled, independent, patriotic press of America has been the stoutest bulwark of the people's rights and of the nation's liberties.

Greater than fleets and armies, greater than all the genius of statesmanship, the press of America, free, independent, patriotic, has stood firm and strong and true against all injustice and against every encroachment upon the domain of the people's rights.

Every stone that was laid in the fabric of American institutions during the struggling days which followed '76 was bonded in the cement of a free and solid, patriotic and independent American press, racy of the soil and loyal in all its utterances.

Is this bond in danger of dissolution? Is this long cemented union to be melted "like snow before the sun," in the corroding acid of corporation corruptive influence?

Here is a question for the American people to face; no other people will face it for them.

It is an issue as deep and as pregnant as any that has reared itself since Washington and his confreres gave this nation birth.

It is a problem as serious as any that has come before the people since the martyred Lincoln spoke his inspiring prayer upon the field of Gettysburg.

Gagging the press of America, bringing it under the control of monopolistic corporations, seven-eighths of whom are said to be persistent violators and defiers of the nation's laws, is a crime fully in the class with the poisoning of the wells when hostile armies are on the march.

An independent, patriotic journalism is the very life blood of this republic.

It is for the people to see that it endures.

The House Democrats Had Better Not Cripple the Navy

The Democratic caucus of the House of Representatives has instructed the Committee on Naval Affairs not to stand for any new battleships this year.

This action is surprising and disappointing. It should be promptly rescinded.

The country is committed to a policy of naval improvement. Its prudence and its pride are involved in that policy. The demand for two new battleships a year has passed beyond the range of serious controversy. It has become the settled demand of conservatism. It chimes with the universal desire for peace, and for the power to make peace.

Upon the controlling party in the House of Representatives this public obligation is laid. It is imperative and unescapable. The nation could not trust a party that should prove to be deliberately false to such a trust. A party that should refuse to provide defences for the country would make itself indefensible.

The Democratic majority in the House is moving with the momentum of a magnificent record. It has done great things, and is in the way of doing still greater things. It has escaped from faction and confusion. It has worked with a steady will and a firm hand.

This caucus action is the first grave mistake of the House Democrats. It was ill-considered, if not accidental. It seems to have resulted from a dispute over an appropriation for public buildings.

The mistake is doubly serious because it exposes the Democratic party to criticism at what is supposed to be its weakest point. Sharp critics will say that the Democracy is strong enough in domestic and local affairs, but weak where vast and far-reaching national interests are concerned.

It is impossible that the larger kind of Democrats can submit with unanimity to such a policy of perilous littleness. If it should stand uncancelled, this action would tend to split the party in Congress and to subject its program to crushing humiliation at the hands of its political opponents.

The caucus action should be reconsidered. The House Democrats had better not cripple the navy.

DR. PARKHURST'S ARTICLE

MEMORY—A GIFT AND AN ACQUISITION

Written for the Boston American

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

A CORRESPONDENT has addressed to me an inquiry to which he requests reply, either by mail or through the columns of the Boston AMERICAN, of which it appears that he is an interested and constant reader.

In adopting the latter medium regard is had to the fact that the case he mentions is only one of many fitted to occasion solicitude and to require relief. His letter, authenticated by the name and address of the writer, is in part as follows:

"I am moved to ask you the following question in regard to my son, who is eighteen years old and just entering business. The boy is rather bright, intelligent and ambitious. He is honest and of good habits, but suffers from a poor memory and lack of concentration, and finds these defects a serious handicap in the proper discharge of his duties.

"He is determined to go to work earnestly to acquire those qualities which he lacks and without which no man can hope to make his way through life successfully. Now, what I would like to know is this: Is memory a gift and can it be acquired, and, if so, how, when and where? What about these memory schools which hold out such alluring promises as to improvement, advancement and ultimate success?"

Memory to Some Extent a Gift; Also an Acquisition

Memory is to some extent a gift, but it is also an acquisition, and can be immensely strengthened if one has the energy and perseverance to put himself to the task.

Men who have gotten quite along in years and have discovered that this faculty was becoming enfeebled and treacherous, have, with success, set themselves deliberately to work to re-energize it by memorizing names and dates and committing to memory long passages in books, thus bringing that faculty back toward its proper tone, exactly as one who feels that the muscles of his body are becoming less pliant can in part correct the defect by giving to those muscles a larger amount of carefully regulated exercise.

It is like any other power that has fallen into arrears, or that has been neglected, but which can be quickened by the application of judicious stimulus.

This is especially practicable in the instance of the young man in question, seeing that he is as yet a boy. This suggestion, if adopted, will presumably serve his purpose as well as any memory school.

The lack of concentration is a somewhat more serious matter. It implies a certain amount of mental instability. It argues a mind that is not fully awake and in possession of itself.

If the young man were drowning he would concentrate on the life-rope. Or if he were in a burning building he would concentrate on the means of exit.

Were he my boy there are three things I should do for him. I should draw a small circle on the wall and instruct him to fasten his eye upon it and hold it there unswerving for five, ten or fifteen minutes, as the case might be.

Three Devices for the Curing of Defective Memory

That would be a kind of visual gymnastic and would probably give to him a clearer idea of what concentration means than he at present possesses. His impulse will be to let his attention drift outside the circle unless he keeps fast hold of himself.

Another experiment will be to read to him a story—short and interesting, at first—and after the reading is finished require him to reproduce it. The effort will be to weave his powers of attention, comprehension and memory into a single compact cord.

The third device would be to secure for him employment of such a kind that he can easily give his affections to it. We do concentratedly anything that we love to do.

I had a pupil once who when he was learning his lesson would let his eyes roam all around the room and his thoughts travel all around the world, but when I once detected him harnessing up a grasshopper on his desk there was evidenced an amount of concentration which, had it been applied to his studies, would easily have made him a scholar and a philosopher.

As bearing upon the matter of concentration and the importance of it it will be to the point to relate the following little incident as told by a lawyer. He was in pursuit of a young man whom he could take into his office as assistant and whom he could instruct in his law studies.

A candidate for the position appeared whose capacities for the successful pursuit of the law he tested by telling him the following story:

"A certain man shot at a bird. Now, it happened that, when he shot, the bird was flying between the eye and a barn stored with hay. The bullet perforated the barn door, lodged in a haymow, set the hay on fire, and the whole establishment was wiped out in a grand conflagration."

The lawyer was expanding on the magnificence of the conflagration when the young candidate interrupted the narrator, saying: "Excuse me, sir, but did he hit the bird?" "You will do, my boy," said the lawyer.

He Writes About His Papa's Lyrics

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I GOT a swell offer yesterday from the greatest theatrical manager in the country, Pa sed. He wants me to rite a lot of lyrics for him. He knows that I am full of ideas, sed Pa, & he knows, too, sed Pa, that there isent a man living that can rite the kind of verses that I can.

You dont say so, sed Ma; you dount think that you are a reel poet, do you? Let us heer sum of your efforts.

Well, sed Pa, here is one of the poems that I have rote, I thought it wud make a swell song. It is called WEN LOVE IS DED FOREVER. This is the way it goes, sed Pa:

WEN LOVE IS DED FOREVER!

Wen Love is ded, grate tears unshed
Make brite eyes lose thare luster,
With muffled drum sad memories cum
& round the soul they cluster.
The hart is but a haunted hut,
The sun of joy can never
Shine thru the door & warm it o'er,
Wen love is dead forever.

Well, sed Pa, what do you think of it?

I think it is vary feerce, sed Ma, if you want to know it. I feel vary sorry to think that your frend had so much faith in human nature as to make you a swell offer to rite lyrics. I'm gulped kind of hard. Maybe you dident like that lyric vary much, sed Pa, but I am sure that you will like this comick one. Then Pa sang:

The bluejay was shining britely in a swell & brijyant hoam.
The faithful husband with a rake was raking up the loam.
Why doant you cum in inside, deer? the wife then did implore.
I never seen you rake so much before.
The husband raised his tired face & faced his luvly wife, & unto her did gag——

For hevings sake, sed Ma, do you think that kind of junk is going to maik a impressium with a theetrical manager? How do you expeck to maik good with that kind of stuff, sed Ma, wen men like Vince Bryant & Billy Jerome & Harry Williams is on the market with thare wares?

Dident you think it was funny? sed Pa. Then how wud you like to hear a reely sad song.

Lite of my life, the shadows fail,
The shadows that are dying;
Lite of my life, this ain't no stail—
I am dying, Egypt, dying!

You poor old boob, sed Ma, you cant rite lyrics. Nature intended you for to be a grocer, sed Ma. Now go on to bed, & if you talk in your sleep dount call yureself Lord Byron. Stick to the good old commershul life, sed Ma. You are too fat in the head to be a genyus.

Then Pa tour up his lyrics.
